

'Spaceplomats' splash down safely

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 5:18 p.m. EDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts. Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space with their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

A half-empty bottle of vodka awaited the astronauts in Moscow. They drank the first half with cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov before the mission started, promising to finish it in a reunion after all were back on earth.

"There, there!" Leonov shouted with relief as Slayton's balding head emerged from Apollo's hatch. He and Kubasov watched the splashdown on TV at Moscow control.

Apollo was lifted aboard the New Orleans 42 minutes after the heat-seared spacecraft splashed down in calm, blue swells. The astronauts did not get out of the craft until it was safely on the carrier.

"I wondered for many years what it would be like when this day came along, and it's a great feeling to see this ship out here when you splash down," said Brand. Like Slayton, he was making his first flight.

The astronauts, clad in their orange flight suits, were welcomed aboard by Capt. Ralph E. Neiger, commander of the New Orleans. They greeted defense department recovery officials, bowed their heads in a prayer of thanks for their safe return and then took the call from Ford.

"Thanks for a very successful and extremely productive flight in space," Ford said, speaking on a white telephone from his desk in the Oval Office. "We're delighted to have you back safely and we're very, very proud of the great job that you did."

The smooth recovery took 42 minutes. At 6 p.m. a crane hoisted Apollo aboard a four-wheeled trailer on the aft elevator of the New Orleans and technicians moved in to check the spacecraft.

Five minutes later Stafford opened the hatch, handed out films of the historic flight and then climbed out himself.

Senate couldn't hold vote on issue

Pa. legislators lose expense hike

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A plan to hike legislators' expenses by $2,500 a year and to give each House member $8,500 to hire staff collapsed Thursday night when Senate Republicans failed to provide the votes needed.

The Senate voted to adjourn until Sept. 22. The House was holding a late night session to debate amendments to a teachers' retirement bill, but was expected to adjourn late in the night.

The adjournment came after a day of frantic meetings among legislative leaders that failed to produce agreements on a $60 million budget bill that included the staff money and the expense account increase bill.

The failure to vote quickly virtually killed any chances the legislature would act this year on the $2.8 million package for rank-and-file lawmakers.

"We didn't have the votes. We didn't run the bills," said

Senate President Pro Tempore Martin L. Murray, D-Luzerne.

Murray said the House was prepared to pass both bills and all the Democrats needed were two GOP votes on each bill. But he said the Republicans failed to provide even one vote.

Republican members said they opposed the budget bill because it did not give the state-owned colleges the money they needed and because of the provision to give House members home office secretaries.

The GOP lawmakers also said they opposed the manner in which Senate Democrats added the expense account increase at a State Government Committee meeting that no one knew about.

Also, the Republicans reportedly were miffed at the Senate vote taken Wednesday to uphold Gov. Milton J. Shapp's veto of an antibusing bill.

Democratic leaders worked on the Republicans until early evening to come up with the votes to pass the two bills.

The Senate Appropriations Committee even reported out a bill that would give the Democrats 60 per cent of the funds available for Senate staffing and the GOP only 40 per cent. Currently, the $4 million is divided 50-50.

"We resent their decision to steal our traditional allocation of Senate expenses," said Minority Leader Richard Frame, R-Venango. "That decision was made to punish us."

velop a good bill, he said.

In the House, Pocono representatives said they were satisfied that the House had approved its malpractice bill, but differed about the lack of Senate action.

"I think we've got a pretty good bill," said Rep. Raphael Musto, D-Luzerne. "I'm anxious to see that bill passed."

Rep. Russell Kowalyshyn, D-Northampton, said he was "pleased the House took its action at this time," and said he hoped Senate members would study the House bill during the summer recess "so complete legislation can be finalized in September."

Rep. William Foster, R-Wayne, was critical that the Senate recessed without acting on the bill. "It's a major issue, and they should have acted on it before they left," he said.

Area lawmakers divided on stalled malpractice bill

OTTAWA NEWS SERVICE

Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Pocono lawmakers were divided Thursday as the Pennsylvania legislature recessed for the summer without sending a malpractice medical insurance bill to Gov. Milton J. Shapp.

Monday, the House of Representatives passed what House members described as a solid compromise measure, but the Senate, which adjourned Thursday night until Sept. 22, did so without giving the House-passed bill any consideration.

Sen. T. Newell Wood, R-Luzerne, said he believes there is a critical need for malpractice legislation, and reported he joined other Senate Republicans in asking Gov. Shapp to order a special legislative session devoted solely to the malpractice issue in the next few weeks.

Sen. Frederick H. Hobbs, R-Schuylkill, disagreed, and said the malpractice question "should very legitimately wait until September."

Hobbs added, "I haven't had time and few other members (of the Senate) have had time to fully analyze the House bill."

The legislature shouldn't be too hasty in attempting to de-

Faithful Fido falls victim to crunch of inflation

SEATTLE, WASH. (UPI) — The family dog has become a victim of inflation, according to animal shelter workers.

The principal victims are the large dogs — St. Bernards, Great Danes, German shepherds and Labradors — because they cost too much to feed.

"They're giving up the family pet," said Mary Henderson, executive secretary at the Humane Society. "One man, about 27, said 'I'm so sorry, it's either feeding my children or feeding my dog.'"

"We've destroyed 12 St. Bernards in the last six months," said Walter Russell, an enforcement supervisor for Seattle Animal Control. "Before that, we had only lost St. Bernards, all reclaimed by their owners. But all of a sudden it went boom, and now owners are bringing in dogs because they simply cannot afford to feed them."

Russell said that in addition to St. Bernards, the numbers of German shepherds, Labradors and Great Danes brought to the shelter by owners has doubled or tripled in the last six months.

Space pioneering over

Apollo — end of an era

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Apollo astronauts Thursday ended a pioneering U.S. manned spaceflight era.

Forty-three Americans have gone into space during the past 14 years, beginning with the 15-minute up and down hop of Alan Shepard in a Mercury capsule on May 5, 1961.

He was followed by five other Mercury pilots, including John Glenn who became the first American to orbit Earth, on Feb. 20, 1962.

Project Mercury was followed by the Gemini program which pioneered rendezvous and docking techniques with 10 two-man orbital flights in 1965 and 1966.

Then came Project Apollo, the monumental effort that sent men to the moon in the three-seat spaceship nearly identical to the one Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton used to meet two Russians in orbit for the Apollo-Soyuz international spaceflight.

The Apollo effort began with tragedy when Virgil "Gus" Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died Jan. 27, 1967, in a fire aboard the spacecraft during a ground test on the launch pad at what then was Cape Kennedy.

A modified Apollo was successfully flown in Earth orbit for nearly 11 days in October, 1968, and from then one Project Apollo rolled from one success to another. The first moon orbital flight was logged by three Apollo 8 astronauts two months later at Christmastime.

Apollo 9 made an earth-orbital checkout of the lunar lander in March, 1969. Apollo 10 rehearsed lunar landing operations around the moon two months later and then Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin became the first men to set foot on the moon July 20, 1969.

Five more lunar landings were carried out and one mission — Apollo 13 — was aborted with its crew looping around the moon before returning home.

In all 24 men went to the moon. Twelve landed and the rest flew around it. Three astronauts made two flights.

The lunar landing program was followed by the Skylab effort which used Apollos to ferry three-man crews to the orbiting space station. Three crews lived and worked aboard Skylab at different times, spending 28, 59 and 84 days in orbit.

President telephones astronauts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford congratulated the Apollo astronauts by telephone after their safe return from the U.S.-Soviet space mission Thursday and said they had "opened a new era of international cooperation."

Speaking from an Oval Office telephone, with a nearby television set tuned in to the splashdown coverage, Ford chatted with the astronauts in warm first-name terms and watched their reactions aboard the recovery ship U.S.S. New Orleans.

"Congratulations, and thanks for an extremely productive flight in space," Ford said.

He directed his remarks to Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Deke Slayton, who landed in the Pacific Ocean on the 6th anniversary of man's first return from a lunar landing.

"Your safe return marks the close of the Apollo program," Ford said. "You should be proud. Your flight adds a new dimension to the space program and to international cooperation which will be extremely important in the days ahead."

"Great to have you back safely," the President said, "and I know that all of you are glad to get back home."

Then he bantered with each of the astronauts, telling Slayton that even though he was "an old-timer to be in space" he found that he was very agile in the Apollo capsule.

He told the astronauts, "your achievements along with those of the Russian astronauts are historic."

"My congratulations for a very outstanding performance. I'll see you back in Washington. Signing off."

Former Stroudsburg man had good view of landing

STROUDSBURG — When Apollo made its historic splashdown in the Pacific Thursday, Albert Shively, formerly of Stroudsburg, had one of the best views to watch the proceedings.

Shively, a Marine captain, didn't see the event on television from a comfortable living room, but rather caught a bird's eye view from the U.S.S. New Orleans, the veteran recovery ship.

Mrs. Frank Fraunfelter of 903 Clay Ave., Stroudsburg, Shively's grandmother, said she was "glued to the television set all afternoon" in the hope of seeing her grandson.

"I didn't spot him, but then I really didn't know what type of uniform he would be wearing or anything," she said.

Mrs. Fraunfelter said her grandson learned he would be on the ship in June. Shively, 28, had previously served as the only Marine on U.S.S. Paul Revere.

"As I understand it, the skipper of the U.S.S. New Orleans had specifically asked that he be on the ship. I believe he was in the line of men who welcomed the astronauts aboard," she said.

Shively, who stayed at his grandparents' house during the summer and other times throughout the year, attended East Stroudsburg High School.

Mrs. Fraunfelter says she sometimes has mixed feelings about the space program as "I guess almost everybody does."

"I only know for sure my grandson supports it. He probably knows more about it, so in the long run I'm with him."

Compromise on price decontrol

Ford drafts new oil plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford expects to send Congress today a new compromise proposal to decontrol the price of most domestic oil over a 38-month period, White House sources said Thursday.

A White House aide said the plan is expected to call for a 38-month phase-out of controls on so-called "old oil" — from wells which were producing before 1973 — with possibly a lower final ceiling than the $13.50 which Ford originally proposed.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb and other White House officials met Thursday evening and will meet again this morning to put finishing touches on the new plan, which was reached in consultation with House and Senate leaders of both parties, aides said.

Speaker Carl Albert tipped off the new plan to reporters in the House Thursday, and it was confirmed later by White House aides.

There was no confidence expressed that the compromise will be acceptable to a Congress which has voted not only to continue the controls but to roll back prices.

"We recognize there are hurdles," said one aide.

The current $5.25 per barrel ceiling on old oil expires Aug. 31. But Friday was the last day that a plan could be submitted for action by Congress before its month-long recess which begins Aug. 1.

Under present law, the President's plan would become law unless disapproved by either House or Senate within five days. The House on Wednesday disapproved Ford's original plan calling for a 30-month phase-out.

The House this week already rejected a Ford plan to lift price limits over a 30-month period. Congress plans a month-long recess in August, so that Ford would have to have a new plan ready by today to give Congress the statutory five legislative days to consider it before recessing Aug. 1.

But there was still wide disagreement over what ceiling to put on prices and how quickly to let controls phase out.

What's news

Beef prices set record high

WASHINGTON — Retail beef prices hit a record high in June — 24.3 per cent higher than in March — and continued to advance in July but may be “peaking out” soon, agriculture department officials said Thursday. A monthly report on food prices and farm-to-retail price spreads showed the average price of all cuts of Choice Grade beef hit a record $1.58 a pound. This was up 6.8 per cent from May and was 24.3 per cent above March when the current upswing began. The June price was 19.4 per cent above a year earlier.

Storms cause one death

ELMA, N.Y. — Thunderstorms, packing tornadoes, high winds and lightning bore down on western New York State Thursday. At least one person was killed, 13 others were injured, authorities said. The National Weather Service reported sightings of four tornadoes in the area which damaged two mobile homes in Yorkshire, N.Y., and a small building in Alden in Erie County. The other two reported twisters caused no damage. A thunderstorm knocked a tree onto the car of Normal Niesyto, 19, of Elma, N.Y. Niesyto lost control of the car and ran into a telephone pole, causing his death.

Pat O'Brien in serious condition

CHICAGO — Veteran screen and stage actor Pat O'Brien, 75, and suffering from a heart ailment, was reported in serious condition Thursday in the cardiac intensive care unit of a suburban hospital. O'Brien, who entered Little Company of Mary Hospital with chest pains Tuesday, was placed on the critical list early Thursday but a hospital spokesman later said his condition had improved to “serious.” His personal physician says he is talking, he is lucid and his vital signs are stabilizing although there is a problem with his heart rhythm,” the spokesman said.

Reagan boosters now official

WASHINGTON — A committee officially boosting former California Gov. Ronald Reagan for president registered with the Federal Election Commission Thursday. The committee was authorized by Reagan who said in a letter he had not yet made up his mind on becoming a presidential candidate. Reagan wrote the letter to Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., who is chairman of the “Citizens for Reagan” committee. John P. Sears, a Washington lawyer who was active in former President Richard M. Nixon's 1968 campaign, was listed as executive vice chairman and Henry Buchanan, of Bethesda, Md., was named treasurer.

Bufalino acquitted

BUFFALO, N.Y. — A seven-woman, five-man federal court jury in Buffalo Thursday found reputed mobsters Russell Bufalino and Anthony F. Guarnieri innocent of conspiracy charges. The two had been accused of trying to extort $100,000 from a Genava, N.Y., businessman. The jury deliberated for 10 hours before taking a lunch break, then returned the verdict less than one-half hour after resuming deliberations. Bufalino, 72, of Exeter, Pa., allegedly the head of organized crime in northeastern Pennsylvania and Guarnieri, 62, of Endicott, were accused of conspiring to extort money from Emmanuel Caratozzolo, owner of a Genava discount store.

Persistent bride

CANTON, Ill. — Kathryn Shumaker lost her church but her marriage plans will go ahead. Tornadoes which badly damaged about one-third of Canton Wednesday destroyed the First Church of Nazarene where Miss Shumaker was to be married a week from Saturday. “We can still get married,” she said Thursday. “We don't have the church but we still have each other.”

Little trial alternates chosen

RALEIGH, N.C. — A black youth and a 77-year-old retired white jeweler were seated Thursday as the first two alternate jurors in the trial of Joan Little, a young black woman charged with murdering a white jailer she claims tried to rape her. A total of four alternates will be selected, and will serve in the event one of the regular 12 jury members has to step down because of sickness or for some other reason. The racial makeup of the regular jury is seven whites and five blacks. The first two alternates chosen were Donnell A. Livingstone, a former college student who collects water bills for the city, and Ernest Neiman, who ran a Raleigh jewelry store for 30 years and serves as a trustee for the reformed Jewish Synagogue in the city.

Israelis insist gaps exist in peace talks

By United Press International
Israel's government-operated national radio said Thursday Israel has provided for the first time a map showing how far it wants Israeli forces to withdraw in the Sinai Desert.

But, the radio said, the gap between the two sides on an interim peace settlement remained substantial. High-ranking government sources in Tel Aviv denied reports in the United States that Egypt had accepted Israeli peace proposals in general terms. They said continued meetings by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's negotiating team were evidence that a gap exists.

“The gap is still wide and the gap is not limited to one specific topic,” the national radio's diplomatic correspondent said.

He said Egypt provided a map of projected Israeli withdrawal lines for the first time since the new round of negotiations began. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger relayed the map along with the latest Egyptian proposals.

The radio said Egypt did not accept an Israeli proposal to retain the eastern ends of the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil fields in the Sinai.

Cairo also has objected to the scope of an Israeli proposal for joint U.S.-Israeli control over electronic listening posts in the area of the passes to detect troop and equipment movements.

The radio report said the indirect negotiations, in which Egypt and Israel make the proposals to U.S. officials, are proceeding according to a timetable agreed upon between Kissinger and Rabin at their meeting in Bonn last month.

Red roses for unsung heroes

HOUSTON (UPI) — A dozen dark red roses appeared on the flight director's console in Mission Control Thursday to mark the final Apollo splash-down—a tradition that started with the Apollo 8 Christmas flight around the moon.

As usual, a lady who said she once lived in Canada sent a long note with the flowers. She signed the note: “Cindy Diane, Keystone State of Pennsylvania.”

The flowers were dedicated to ground controllers who share little of the limelight the astronauts bask in during missions.

No one has met the mystery woman, but many space officials have received telephone calls from her. She always called direct, leaving few clues as to where she was or her age. Guesses have ranged that she is from mid-20s to retired age.

Several space officials and newsmen have tried to track the lady. Letters sent general delivery to small post offices where she was thought to live were returned marked “address unknown.”

Gerald Griffin, a former flight director and now NASA assistant administrator for legislative affairs, talked with Cindy Diane many times.

“It's my impression she's a real patriot, a space nut and certainly has her heart in the right place,” Griffin said. “I'd guess she's in her early 30s but that's only an impression from things she said on the phone.”

“I guess she's a real mystery.”

In her note accompanying the flowers Thursday, she said controllers could be proud of their work on the Apollo-Soyuz flight. The note said:

“This Betsy Ross Bicentennial arrangement of my favorite rose is for my country's flag...in the greatest mission control center in the world; to honor our great and outstanding Apollo-Soyuz mission and for all our NASA personnel for their dedication to duty again proving they are the best in their very specialized profession.”

House scotches arms deals

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The House Thursday refused to lift the embargo on U.S. arms sales to Turkey despite strong pleas from President Ford and heavy pressure from the Turks. The House voted 223 to 206 to defeat legislation that would have partially lifted the arms ban, levied Feb. 5 against Turkey because it had used U.S. military weapons in its 1974 invasion of Cyprus and the resultant clash with Greece, another NATO ally.

In the tough debate that preceded the vote, some Congressmen said Turkey's threat to close U.S. military bases in the event of an unfavorable vote amounted to “blackmail.”

The House bill would have only partially lifted the arms ban by giving Turkey the $185 million in weapons it already has bought and partially paid for. It would have deferred the issue of an unconditional resumption of sales — a move already approved by the Senate — until consideration of the 1976 military assistance act.

The public House galleries erupted in loud applause when the vote was tallied.

Earlier this month the Senate voted 41 to 40 to totally lift the ban.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coming up next for America's astronauts is the space shuttle rocket plane that will revolutionize the space business when it starts flying in 1979.

“When we get to shuttle, we're finally going to establish a beachhead in space,” Deputy NASA Administrator George M. Low said Thursday.

The shuttle, about the size of a DC9 jetliner, will take off like a rocket and land like an airplane. Its first flight in the atmosphere is planned in the spring of 1977 with the first orbital test scheduled two years later.

The shuttle will replace the Apollo ship which carried 38 men into space and ended an era with the completion of the joint flight of three Americans and two Russians.

“In a way, we've only gone out west in a covered wagon, but with shuttle we're going out on the first train,” Low said in an interview. “We're going to open up space like it's never been opened before.

“We'll make it so relatively easy to get in and out of space, we'll suddenly discover space as a place to help man on earth and a place to explore.”

Low, who took over the Apollo spacecraft program after a launch pad fire killed three astronauts in 1967, said the end of the Apollo era was not sad to him because America was moving into a program which would revolutionize space travel.

“Was the death of the Model A Ford a bad thing? I think not,” Low said. “It was the best built at the time, but can you imagine us riding around in the Model A today.”

The shuttle is basically a winged rocket that can be used over and over again with only minor refurbishment expected to take a week or two. It will change the space agency's way of doing things in space.

The Apollo was good for one flight only. The rockets that launched it were discarded into the sea after only a few minutes of operation.

The shuttle also will use booster rockets to help it get out of the atmosphere, but these big solid propellant rockets will be parachuted back into the sea, recovered, refueled and use again.

When it returns to Earth, the shuttle will glide to a landing on a runway nearly three miles long near nearing completion near its launch site at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Needed Gina for perfection

One thing missing from space trip

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet cosmonaut Maj. Len. Alexei A. Leonov said Thursday the Apollo-Soyuz linkup was “smooth as a peeled egg” and needed only Gina Lollobrigida to make it perfect.

Back in Moscow to a heroes' welcomes, Leonov and his flight engineer Valeri N. Kubasov said the mission was faultless both from a technical point of view and as an exercise in international cooperation.

Using a phrase he picked up from Apollo commander Brig.

Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, Leonov told a news conference in English:

“Our part of the Soviet-American joint flight was completed successfully...everything went as smooth as a peeled egg.”

To the three American astronauts preparing to come back to earth, he said “Valeri Kubasov and I want to say thank you for your great job and good luck. I'm sure we will meet you shortly after landing.”

Leonov said the cooperation begun in space would continue between the crewmen on earth but added he was not yet sure of plans for the cosmonauts and astronauts to meet and travel together.

Answering a message of congratulations from the Moscow Film Festival, Leonov said he and Kubasov had to work as directors, actors and cameramen in space, having used up 1,500 feet of movie film and 24 rolls of still film.

“We had everyone on board. All we lacked was Gina Lollobrigida,” he said, then added: “Unfortunately.”

The news conference was the cosmonauts' first public appearance since returning to Moscow after their safe landing

James Mann, D-S.C., and Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., said their feelings ranged from sadness to fatigue to worry.

Committee Chairman Rodino and Mann voted for impeachment and Wiggins, a strong supporter of Nixon at the time, voted “no.” He later withdrew support for Nixon after reading the transcript of one incriminating tape.

“I was saddened that I had to cast that vote,” said Rodino. “And I suppose at that moment I felt deeply within (that) the American public, I hoped, would accept what we had found as a judgment that Richard Nixon should be impeached.”

“In my mind there was a pattern of conduct that showed a pattern of obstruction of justice and abuse of power.”

Fair method needs formula

Taxpayers assn. debates sewerage fees

Mount Pocono Bureau
MOUNT POCONO — What constitutes an equivalent dwelling unit (EDU) and what will be the most equitable means of charging residents and commercial users of the Mount Pocono Central Sewerage System, is of prime concern to the Mount Pocono Taxpayers Association.

At this week's meeting, officers and members discussed at length the flat rate of one EDU versus meter readings.
Francis O'Boyle, chairman of the association and several members have been meeting informally with members of the local authority and members of The Greater Mount Pocono Businessmen's Association in order to arrive at a satisfactory means of assessment to all users of the system.

The Municipal Authority had previously discussed the possibility of extending a discount rate to commercial users during a slack season.

Residents would pay a flat rate of one EDU. Commercial establishments using meters would pay according to water usage during the peak season and only the minimum during the slack season.

Norbert DeMars, resident and taxpayer association member, stated he was not opposed to the meter method, but did oppose granting a reduced rate to commercial users during a slack season.
DeMars pointed out that during the commercial slack season home owners would have to carry the greater burden of payment.

He also stated allowing a reduced rate to commercial users would not be fair to persons who do not occupy their homes on a year-round basis, or to persons who close their homes during vacations.
Most members agreed the most equitable means would be meters for all users.

O'Boyle said he felt arriving at an average would be a fair way to charge. He noted that the authority could take a year's estimated water flow, divide by 12 and charge accordingly for the monthly rate.

All suggestions made at this week's meeting will be discussed with the local municipal authority. Recommendation will also be made that a public hearing be held before official adoption of the monthly rate assessment.

Pike jailer appoints solicitor

MILFORD — "It's a sign of the times" in rural Pike County when the sheriff's office needs a solicitor, according to Sheriff Arthur Jebson.

And Attorney Jack Linshaw of Gumble, Thomson and Linshaw was named this week as the man to help Jebson with an ever increasing number of sheriff's sales and complaints.

"The volume of work has increased considerably. In the past two or three years the recession has changed everything and more people seem to be going down the chute," the sheriff said.

Jebson reported a volume of sales close to $3 million this year as compared to between $5,000 and $10,000 in 1962 when he took office.

"Some were only $500, others $1,500 . . . $2,000. This year the last sale I handled involved $2.5 millions."

In addition to the increase in sheriff's sales, Jebson said he also needed a solicitor to aid with certain legal complications.

Linshaw's appointment, approved by Pike County Commissioners, will take effect immediately. He will be paid $35 per hour.

'It'll never fly, Wilbur'

Wild in the yonder, but not blue

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter
MOUNT POCONO — Move over Dad, here I come, could well be the motto applied to Karen Davis.

Although the personable Miss Davis was firmly planted on the ground during the interview, her eyes and heart were on the "wild blue yonder."

Flying to the 23-year-old miss from Readers, is synonymous to living.

Licensed pilot, instructor
Karen, a licensed pilot and flight instructor at the Mount Pocono Airport, is qualified in commercial, private, multi-engine, and glider aircraft. She also qualifies for instruments, flight instructor, and ground instruction.

Next week she will take the airline transportation pilot check ride in Allentown. This is the highest rating to be obtained by a pilot.

Since taking her first lesson at age 16, Karen has accumulated 2,600 hours flying time, including 900 hours in multi-engine aircraft, and 1,000 hours in instruction.

Pop's a pilot
Flying is not new to Karen, she grew up with it. Her Dad, Vernon, is a commercial pilot for TWA.

Of her many experiences in the air, one in particular stands out as her "greatest trip."

"My Dad and I flew from Blairtown, N.J. to Santa Barbara, Calif. in a two seater aircraft," she said.

"This is not too common. It took five days with about 38 hours flying time. It was fantastic," she added.

Karen has been flight instructor at the Mount Pocono Airport for the past two months. At present she has 10 students taking instructions once a week and some who do not take lessons as often.

Local people and persons from the cities having second homes in the Poconos are among her students.

"The people who have week-end homes seem to prefer taking lessons here as opposed to the city," Karen remarked.

Her youngest student is 14 years old and others range in age up to the 50's.

Karen noted that once her students have learned the techniques from take-off through landings and are on their own their reaction is "one huge smile."

Karen said she derives much personal satisfaction from having accomplished on her own, as well as teaching someone else to understand and enjoy flying.

Recalls incidents
Not unlike any other instructor, Karen, has many amusing student incidents.

She recalled the time she and a male student were flying out of Allentown on a practice cross country flight to Morris-town, N.J.

"During our flight we could see Long Island Sound, Manhattan Island, the Hudson River, and the Atlantic Ocean."

"Suddenly he said 'there's my river', referring to a small river that ran East of Norristown."

"That's the only time I had anyone mistake an ocean for a small river," she laughed.

The 1969 graduate from Pocono Mountain High School said she cannot see herself in any other profession.

"The diverseness and challenges of flying are it for me," she stressed.

Karen, since becoming a licensed pilot, has flown two small aircraft to California, done charter work in the mid-West and Southern states.

While in Puerto Rico, she was co-pilot on a cargo plane for two years transporting everything from ice cream to race horses throughout the Caribbean.

Her longest non-stop flight was from Puerto Rico to Miami, a distance of 1,100 miles.

Watching a helicopter land at the airport, her eyes took on a special glow.

"If I had the money that's the aircraft I would have for myself," she said.

In love with her profession, Karen feels everyone should try flying.

"Anyone who has any doubts about flying should read 'Gift of Wings,' by Richard Bach," she said. "It's one fantastic book."

As far as her parents' feelings about her flying, her Dad being a pilot speaks for itself.

"My Mother, naturally worries about me," she said. "I suppose her greatest concern is that I work with men and

Pocono Mountain school plans to borrow $300,000

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain School Board, like other school boards in the area, has found that what you levy is not what you get.

The board voted Wednesday night to borrow up to $300,000 to meet the August payroll and rental payment because tax collectors are unable to collect all of the taxes the district has levied.

District Business Manager David E. Neison said it is anyone's guess why about $30,000 in tax monies has not materialized, but speculated the sluggish economy was the cause. He said the district may not have to borrow any money if revenues increase.

The district would borrow the money at 3.25 per cent from Security Bank and Trust Co. of Stroudsburg.

In other business, the board: — Approved the purchase of a metered pump and tank to provide gasoline to district and contracted buses. The district will save, by not paying tax on the fuel, about $4,000 the first year, Neison said.

— Read a letter from A. Victor Cesare, district engineer with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation, stating that the department is studying how to improve visibility at the entrance to Locust Ridge Road.

At the last board meeting, a letter was read from Mrs. Henry Rinker of Locust Ridge Road, who stated the visibility there creates a dangerous situation for students boarding buses.

— Allowed the administration to buy $3,901 in health supplies, $26,148 in athletic and physical education supplies and equipment, $8,365 in art supplies and $13,980 in shop supplies.

— Hired Paul R. Teter of Henryville as a science and mathematics teacher.

— Read a letter from Andrew B. Ulichney of Mount Pocono, who complimented Miss Marlene Kleinhans, a kindergarten teacher at Coolbaugh Elementary Center, for her outstanding work with Ulichney's child.

— Referred most bids for audio-visual equipment, business machines, furniture, music equipment and food service truck and equipment to the administration for tabulation and recommendations.

Tobyhanna police force reports on June activity

POCONO PINES — Tobyhanna Township Police Department, under the direction of Chief Robert Reed, were kept busy during the month of June responding to 100 calls.

Included were: five motor vehicle accident investigations, five investigations of reported burglaries, five thefts, eight incidents of suspicious vehicles or persons, two reported missing persons, three prowlers, five acts of vandalism, and six domestic type complaints.

Officers also responded to eight dog complaints, two mini-bike complaints, and answered five burglar alarms.

Five criminal arrests were made and one citation was issued for violation of a township ordinance.

The department issued 17 citations for violations of the State Motor Vehicle Code, three written warnings and three equipment repair orders were issued.

The department assisted the township volunteer fire company and ambulance corp five times. Officers responded to calls for assistance from other police departments, including the Pennsylvania State Police, five times.

The township department requested assistance from other departments twice during the month of June.

Officers made 1,291 business security checks and daily checks at six homes in the township while owners were absent.

Reed and Sgt. Henry Bockelman attended the monthly police exchange of information held at the Swiftwater State Police Barracks.

On June 24, Officer Donald B. Fritz completed training at the Tom McGinn Dog Training School in Philadelphia. The department has in service a trained canine and handler.

In China, there's good eating . . . but don't ask what

Editor's note: William E. Giles was a member of a 20-man delegation from the American Society of Newspaper Editors which recently completed a 24-day, 4,350-mile tour of the People's Republic of China. He is an executive of Dow Jones & Co., Inc. This is the fifth of a six-part series on the trip.

By WILLIAM E. GILES
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service

CANTON — On a terrace atop the People's Hotel, 12 stories above the broad moonlit Pearl River, young waiters scurry around with servings of exquisitely prepared pigeon egg soup, terrapin and mushrooms, goose and sauce, lichi and watermelon.

This is no typical fare for Chinese; it's a banquet prepared by Chinese officials for visiting Americans. But the food, exotic and succulent, is representative of the adventures in eating available to the visitors in three weeks of touring through China.

Nothing is ever quite what it seems to be, and Americans learned it's best not to probe too deeply into origins while at the table.

Squid egg soup, for instance, looked like barley broth, with nickel-sized barley. A stunning dessert, with tangerine slices and cherries and something floating soft and white, contained frog fat. And there was no way of identifying a yellowish, soft meat that turned out to be the upper lip of shark. Persistent questioning at a dinner in Kwelin yielded the information that a brown, shiny slice of meat originally was part of a "fruit-eating, fox-like animal." Nobody asked which part.

The Chinese have a marvelous retort for the quizzical look that invariably comes when a guest discovers what he has been eating — periwinkle, for instance, or cooked fungus and sea slugs. "Very nutritious," the Chinese say, "very nutritious."

If you are what you eat, an American on this journey would be: Peking duck, the palm of bear paw, shark fin soup, bird's nest soup (or, as one gourmet explained, swallow spittle), Mandarin fish, grass fish, bean sprouts, glutinous rice, loquat, and some unidentifiable things.

Green tea comes by the gallon, but there are other exhilarating potions. A clear liquor made from sorghum — mao-tai — is aptly called "the eternal flame." There are wines made from various fruits and from rice and good "pijou" — beer.

But the drink that visitors find most often is a lightly carbonated, orangy, sometimes yellowish liquid that flows out of pop bottles and is called "juice." The flavor varies, it seemed, from place to place — slightly orangy tasting in some towns and more like watery banana oil in others. The saving grace was that it was always wet.

Ice popsicles are common in south China. They're white and almost flavorless, but on a dusty afternoon in Hsienhsiang under a persimmon tree, the popsicle tasted almost as good as a mint julep. Without the mint, of course.

Each formal meal had a multitude of various courses — eight to 10 usually — and the guests could pick and choose. Main dishes invariably included duck or chicken (sometimes cooked differently for different courses), a red meat and fish. Fish, which comes to the table with head and tail intact, is prepared with art and delicacy impossible to describe. A sweet and sour sauce over a Mandarin fish is an incredibly satisfying experience.

Chow mein and chop suey? Never saw or heard of it.

A succulent chicken Kiev in Harbin in northeast China startled Americans until it was discovered Russian emigres had settled there after the Russian revolution and the chefs at the Russian-built hotel still knew what to do with a chicken.

Predictably, some Americans built up a craving for steak and potatoes and that was the first meal ordered up in Hong Kong. But after China, steak and potatoes are entirely predictable — and that takes most of the joyous adventure out of eating.

Butz burying head in bushel

Despite ominous signs that inflation has geared up again, fueled by soaring prices for gasoline and other petroleum products, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz maintains that massive wheat and grain purchases by the Soviet Union will have little effect on the U.S. economy.

Apparently Butz has buried his head too deeply into one of those bushel baskets being filled up with Russia-bound wheat.

Butz seems to feel his job is to look after the welfare of farmers and traders alone. He forgets he also must be aware of the effects of such massive food sales on the American consumer and economy.

The Agriculture Department still hasn't got an effective system for projecting Soviet grain needs nor U.S. grain production and processing costs. Butz should realize, for example, that mushrooming petroleum costs are going to affect the cost of foodstuffs in such hidden ways as fuel for farm machinery, propane for crop drying and petroleum-based fertilizers for late crops.

Thus inflation in one sector of the economy affects others. Yet there are no safeguards and no systems for regulating the amount of grain it is safe to export. Nor are there any sliding scales to insure that the infamous grain rip-off of 1972 is repeated, when Russia bought wheat at a lower price than the wheat was worth when delivery time came around.

Rep. Joseph McDade, R-10, has charged that the Agriculture Department "is approaching these sales in the same cavalier fashion as it approached the 1972 sales." He is concerned that the department will grossly underestimate the impact of massive grain sales on the nation's economy. From what we've seen, we have to agree.

Soviet purchases just in the last week have amounted to 9.8 million tons of wheat, corn and barley. Overall Soviet purchases from the U.S., Canada and Australia in the same period have totaled 12.6 million metric tons worth an estimated $1.3 billion.

Those are impressive statistics and no one can persuade us that purchases of such magnitude are not going to have substantial impact on food prices. But Butz and his department seem satisfied that farmers and grain traders are making their bundle, and not too concerned that the consumer will pay the price in the months to come. This despite warnings from the national association of bakers that the grain sales definitely will have an inflationary impact on food prices.

The Agriculture Department's attitude is nothing new, of course. The Ford administration has consistently given consumer interests secondary consideration. It is a big business administration. But if the Soviet grain deals present us with a repeat of the 1972 debacle, the President's insistence that inflation is our number one enemy will have a hollow ring with the American public indeed.

What's happening in the South

WASHINGTON — Yes, the South is the most prosperous, progressive section of the entire United States. The facts presented in an earlier column prove this beyond a doubt.

But what about race? Much of the nation still has a fixation that blacks are particularly discriminated against in the South, have very limited opportunities and are eager to trek north and west.

Blacks don't see it that way any longer. The exodus has slowed to a trickle, a reverse migration of blacks from the North to the South is growing.

Racially, the South is no longer "different" from other parts of the country. In his recent study of the American South for Southern Living magazine, Ben Wattenberg, a highly respected social and political analyst, made this balanced judgment:

"Anyone who thinks that racial tensions and racial problems have ended in the South hasn't been there recently. But anyone who thinks that racial problems are predominantly a Southern issue hasn't been out of the South recently."

The most revealing fact is this: Blacks who remained in the South fared better than the blacks who migrated North. Northern blacks gained 57 per cent of their median family income from 1960 to 1973, while Southern blacks gained 105 per cent!

Put it another way: Blacks are behind whites all over America. Blacks are catching up all over America. Blacks are catching up almost twice as fast in the South.

That's something. And there is more.

Southern schools

Southern schools are more integrated than Northern schools. Southern neighborhoods, according to the objective data of the Bureau of the Census, are more integrated than Northern areas.

WASHINGTON — "Under the present conditions in Washington and conditions which have existed ever since I came to Congress, it is almost impossible to obtain effective legislation in the interest of the people," said Sen. George Norris, the heroic Nebraskan Progressive in 1923. "I have been bucking this game for 20 years and there is no way of beating it. I have done all I could. Now I am through."

Sen. Norris changed his mind and stayed in office long enough to taste new disappointments. The same temptation to chuck it, however, still works on some members of Congress. Not all of them are polyphloisibian hypocrites who'd kill the family dog and eat it for stew if that would return them to office.

The other day, William Hungate, the Democratic Congressman from Missouri, called it a career. "I have gradually become aware that my enthusiasm for public service has been waning under the weight of my frustrated hopes, others' unreasonable pressures, and the job's persistent demands. . . . Where once criticism fell without impact, it now lands heavily. Where once exorbitant demands aroused little feeling, they now provoke annoyance. I have found that since I entered office the duties have increased dramatically, exceeded only by public dissatisfaction with the Congress," he said in his formal statement. Informally he remarked, "If I go on, My Goodness! I'm going

Black voting turnout rates in the South are roughly in the same relationship to blacks outside the South as those of white Southerners to white non-Southerners — about 10 per cent less. The number of blacks elected to major offices in the South went from 16 in 1964 to 94 in 1974 — an increase of 488 per cent, as against a 29 per cent increase outside the South. These include four congressmen compared to none 10 years ago.

In lesser offices the number of blacks rose from 485 in 1968 to 1,515 in 1974.

Wattenberg's view of the South's future is put in these words:

"Blessed by a plenitude of land, by weather and water, by a large but not an overwhelmingly large population, by a population distribution that features literally hundreds of small but not tiny cities. Southerners feel that a new, somewhat less harried and more human American existence can be carved from the land once drenched in the blood of fratricidal war and only now — more than a century later — resuming a full and equal position in the Union."

"Hence, it would surely seem that the expansion of the South — on Southern terms — will continue."

Stories behind words

By William Penfield

Taxi

In France during the latter part of the 19th century horse-drawn carriages for hire were equipped with a device that measured the distance a passenger was hauled and computed the fare.

The device was called a "taximetre," from "tax" (tariff) and "metre." In England and the United States any carriage, later any motor vehicle, so equipped was called a "taximeter cab."

"Taximeter cab" was telescoped to "taxi-cab," which was shortened to "taxi."

Contempt for Congress an American cultural trait

Nicholas Von Hoffman

to wilt like an ice cream soda."

The melting tradition

The melting of Congressional popsicles doesn't represent another one of those suddenly discovered trends we newswies get off on. "The extraordinary high number of resignations from the early Congress alone suggest the degree of the politicians' dissatisfaction with the public life in the capital," writes James Sterling Young ("The Washington Community: 1800-1828," Harcourt, Brace & World, 1966). "From 1797 to 1829 more Senators resigned than failed to be reelected. . . . On the average 17.9 per cent of the Senate resigned every two years, almost six times the biennial turnover in the modern Senate due to resignations. Among Representatives, an average of 5.8 per cent resigned in each Congress, about twice the percentage of resignations in the modern House."

The reasons for chucking it, bagging it and otherwise cashing it in during the first years of the Republic were much the same as some given now. John Quincy Adams called the capital a "sink of corruption," a place of "a thousand corrupt cabals." Young quotes another politician of the period as saying, "I look around — and exclaim where is there one man I can trust! and I feel there is not one!" With less passion, Hungate says, "Politics is a place where there are many friendly people but few friends."

The guinea hens of the media, lined up 11 in a row, declare that people are quitting because the general, Watergate-fostered, opinion of politicians is so low. Piffle. The general opinion of politicians has always been low.

The belief that politicians are parasites, cowards, sellouts and thieves is an American cultural trait. We worship our Presidents, but only after we have despised them in their prior role of office seeker, itself a term of contempt in American English. We're great patriots, yes we are, a vast host of screaming red, white and blue eagles, but what American doesn't revile his government whenever he gets a beer in his hand?

We're sentimental anarchists who venerate our Revolution and hate the government which issued from it. And we'll vote for any blowhard who convinces us he isn't a "professional politician." We love our mythical amateur political heroes so deeply a crook can gull us into backing any new scheme for public speculation simply by telling us it is "non-partisan" or "above politics."

Getting the boot

Once in a while a Congressman who wants to stay and take this guff gets the boot from his colleagues. The treatment is reserved for blacks, reds and the absentmindedly noble. Presently it seems to be happening to Rep. Michael Harrington (D., Mass.) who made the mistake of blabbing about the CIA's role in restoring Chile to the family of capitalist democracies. Chit-chatting about what may have been the world's worst kept secret is a technical violation of the House's rules, so there is a move underway to expel the garrulous Harrington.

The other night a group of Harrington's hapless friends gathered to do him honor before his enemies do him in. Ralph Nader spoke and remarked that in this case, "Instead of the rule of law, you have the law of rule. . . . Those who censured Michael Harrington in effect said thou shalt not report a crime." But then Nader deviated from the tradition of blaming politicians exclusively and talked about the body politic which he described as having moved from the delegation of its responsibilities to itself to abdication of them to "the final stage of vegetation which is a man watching Johnny Carson over the rim of his belly."

Ralph Nader, who ought to be President of the United States, may be able to climb to the top of the rim of the belly. Lesser ones tire or get kicked out, and should the latter happen to Harrington, it is in keeping with our usages to say that Congress' censure is easier to bear than its praise.

dominate McDonald's thinking. At a secret meeting of the House Armed Services Committee, some colleagues nervously snickered at his demand that tactical nuclear weapons be used to "liberate South Vietnam from the Communists."

But McDonald's zealous concerns do not extend to the management of his own affairs, as an examination of his campaign filings shows. We found numerous contributors were still improperly identified, although the House clerk told McDonald's campaign committee about the transgressions last December.

The financial portions of McDonald's campaign report are also suspect. Federal laws limit spending on media advertisements to $50,000 in the primary and $50,000 in the general election.

But McDonald's campaign committee apparently slipped as much as $2,000 worth of primary expenses into the general election accounting. This kept the primary total below the legal limit of $50,000.

Footnote: Two of our reporters made repeated efforts to reach McDonald, even attempting to call him from the House floor. McDonald, so far, has refused comment.

Stamp Collection: The Agriculture Department is looking into charges that politicians in Puerto Rico have "ripped-off" wholesale batches of food stamps while deserving families are virtually starving. We have learned the probe may end with criminal indictments.

The $600 million food stamp project was created less than a year ago and 71 per cent of the island's population is eligible. However, pathetic letters reaching us say that "the staff in charge of the food stamps program are from the (Popular and Independent) parties. . . . Only the rich of the party or those connected with it have access" to the stamps.

Another letter tells of a 79-year-old man crippled by arthritis whose $98.80 in Social Security goes mainly for a nurse-housekeeper and medicine, but who has been put off seven times by food stamp officials.

Other letters tell of well-to-do families who list as dependents their grown children. They, in turn, claim their own children as dependents to get still more food stamps. The stamps, of course, are valuable and in some instances have actually been used as "currency."

Footnote: An Agriculture spokesman confirmed a probe had been going on since March. "It takes time to get started," he said.

'They can't say I'm not doing anything'

How to handle gorillas

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Forget King Kong. Despite the movies' image of gorillas, they are really shy and harmless and don't go around strangling natives or kidnapping maidens.

In fact, gorillas are vegetarians who avoid humans whenever possible, says primate expert Alan Dixon.

And, he adds, they're usually bluffing when they beat their chests, stomp the ground and roar at humans.

Usually, Take the case of Dian Fossey, another primate researcher.

Five male gorillas charged her.

She shouted at them and they turned and fled, Dixon said.

Dixon, assistant zoology professor at the University of California, Berkeley, is concerned with the extinction of gorillas.

He said they appear to be "our closest relative in the animal kingdom" and scientists are just beginning to understand them.

Unless conservation attitudes change, the estimated 35,000 remaining wild gorillas in African jungles may be all gone by the turn of the century, he said.

The main threat to them comes from the destruction of their jungle homes by lumber companies and agriculture. Dixon urges national parks for gorillas and a halt to their sale by animal dealers.

He admits some zoos are successful in breeding gorillas but contends the number that die during capture or soon afterward is larger.

Dummy really wasn't

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Authorities said Thursday an Iowa man was fined $100 for striking what he believed was a dummy in a jail exhibit at a wax museum.

The "dummy" was Stephen Cullar, 13, whose father filed a $5,000 civil lawsuit against Garry Beightol, 25, of Sioux City.

Cullar's was hired to stand amid 12 wax figures in a mockup of a 19th century jailhouse and scare unsuspecting tourists. Before he had a chance to scare Beightol Monday, the man struck him.

"I really think he thought I was wax," Cullar said. "I didn't yell or anything. I sort of blacked out."

Beightol was charged with simple assault. The county judge who fined him also gave him a suspended 30-day jail sentence.

Beer can order causes trouble

More than suds brewing for LCB

HARRISBURG (UPI) — More than beer has been brewing between the Pennsylvania Malt Beverage Association and the Liquor Control Board these past several months.

The LCB and the association have been battling over a regulation approved by the board allowing the sale of beer in 24 oz. cans in Pennsylvania.

The brewers say the board has been sneaky.

And it appears the issue runs deeper than the big cans of beer that only the Schlitz beer company sells. The association has accused the LCB of violations of the state Sunshine Law and Public Documents Act.

It's a long story, but basically it involves the way the LCB made a decision, without notifying the public, to allow the sale of beer in 24 oz. cans — a move the association opposes in principle.

The regulation was finally approved at a public meeting Wednesday, but only because the association attacked the LCB for making a decision earlier "in secret under the cover of darkness."

Back in April, the LCB approved a regulation to allow the sale of beer in 24 oz. cans. "We didn't think it would require a public hearing because it was only a minor change," said LCB Chairman Henry Kaplan.

The Malt Beverage Association saw it differently. They didn't know the regulations were being changed until they read about it in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

So the tavern owners, malt beverage association and distributors complained to the LCB, without success. Only after they filed a suit in Commonwealth Court did the LCB agree to back off, withholding the order until after public hearings.

The hearings were held earlier this summer. Ralph Tive, lobbyist for the association, says most of the testimony came from people who opposed allowing the sale of beer in 24 oz. cans.

Can't solve everyday problems

Math boggles consumers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many areas, including balance, American consumers — especially women — are largely unable to use basic math to solve everyday problems such as computing percentages or deciding what size of package is cheapest, according to a survey released Thursday.

It laid the problem to a gap between theoretical classroom instruction and practical marketplace experience, noting that adults in the survey generally did better than teenagers, apparently because they have been buyers longer. But even the adults performed poorly in many areas, including balance, a checkbook.

Among other things the survey found that "only 10 per cent of the 17-year-olds and 20 per cent of the adults could correctly calculate taxi fare. One per cent of the 17-year-olds and 16 per cent of the adults could balance a checkbook."

Blacks, inner city residents, persons whose parents lack high school educations and residents of southeastern states generally scored lower on math problems dealt out in the survey.

In one test the participants —

34,000 persons aged 17 and 4,200 adults — were given a list of prices for rice in different-sized packages and asked what size was the cheapest per ounce. A similar test involved the cheapest price per ounce of cans of tuna fish.

A majority of those questioned assumed incorrectly the largest size was the best buy in rice, the report said, while 46 per cent of the adults and teens guessed wrong on the tuna.

"It is generally assumed that women do most of the grocery shopping in America," the survey said. "However, on these two exercises adult males were more likely to give the correct answer: adult females were more likely to choose the largest size as the most economical."

No love between Romeo, neighbors

ARNOLD, Mo. (UPI) — A 650-pound lion named Romeo is making the neighbors nervous.

Romeo is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Limpert, who call the animal a pet and keep it in a cage in their garage.

The neighbors say Romeo is an unusual pet indeed, and are putting pressure on the City Council to pass an ordinance to regulate the keeping of pets.

Mrs. William Bocks, one neighbor of the Limperts, said, "It smells horrible. And, if that cage gets open, there's so many children in the area..."

Limpert said, "Every one of the neighbors have pets. This is my pet, and I've had him ever since he was a cub."

Romeo is 15 months old and has been with the Limperts for about a year. He eats about 15 pounds of horse-meat, ground beef and chicken necks a day.

Limpert says the animal is trained and he and his wife, Vicki, wrestle with the lion. They said they hope to train him for parts in movies or television shows.

"Our pet is just a mite unusual but he's caged and not roaming around the neighborhood like some of the other pets," Mrs. Limpert said.

Limpert said he would rather move than get rid of Romeo but there are no plans for a move. In fact, Limpert plans to build a bigger cage in the basement to handle the growing Romeo.

Donations sometimes for charity, sometimes fraud

By PATRICIA ANSTETT
Dow Jones - Ottaway News Service

Proposals for greater regulation of charities are growing as literally hundreds of organizations are being investigated by state prosecutors, licensing officials, or private agencies such as the Better Business Bureau.

Concerns over the way charities collect and spend funds include:

— High fund-raising costs. In 1974 the Disabled American Veterans, Inc., spent 42 cents to raise every dollar it received in donations. Aware of criticism of these expenses, the organization plans to drop several of its costlier direct-mail fund-raising campaigns this year.

It is aiming for fund-raising costs of 36 cents for every dollar raised in 1975. Some charity monitors consider even this too high for such an established organization.

— Excessive charges by some professional fund raisers. Charities have filed dozens of complaints against such firms, which hold circuses, balls, and other fund-raising campaigns for charities.

Some firms take as much as 80 to 90 per cent for expenses and profits, complaints show. In 1973, for example, professional fund raiser Rudy Jacobi raised $74,490 for an Illinois police group — which got only $24,677 after his fee and expenses, court records show. An audit by the Illinois Attorney General found Jacobi's accounting to be fraudulent. A judge ordered Jacobi to pay the police group $6,929 more and banned him from soliciting funds in Illinois.

Inadequate laws

— Inadequate state laws. As of August 1974, only 31 states had laws regulating charities — and most of those lacked even minimal authority or staff to enforce their laws.

These findings are in a recent survey done by the Ohio attorney general's office for the Commission on Private Philanthropy and Public Needs, which is investigating charitable-solicitation problems. The survey concluded that "a considerable majority of state do relatively little or nothing to safeguard charitable donations."

— Salaries of some charity officials. Paul E. Funk earns $52,000 a year as executive vice president of the Epilepsy Foundation of America, Washington, D.C. several officials who monitor charities consider funk's salary "fairly high," but Funk, a former public-relations and advertising specialist, says his salary is "about $100,000 less than I could earn anywhere else."

There are thousands of reputable charities, of course, that follow scrupulous administrative and fund-raising practice, officials monitoring charities say. Still even by the most conservative of their estimates, at least one per cent — or $250 million — of the $25.1 billion reported given to charities. Many officials believe this "take" actually is much higher.

Charity's problems

"There are more problems than people either think or want to acknowledge," says Joseph M. Paul, assistant chief of the Charitable Foundations Section, Ohio Attorney General's office. In May about 90 charities were under investigation by the Ohio office, Paul says. "High overhead, with little going to charitable purposes," was the main complaint prompting the investigations, he adds.

Part of the call for regulation of charities stems from the sheer size of charitable donations in the United States. Despite the recession, donations to charities increased to $25.1 billion in 1974 from $23.4 billion in 1973, or 7.4 per cent, according to the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, Inc.

The Lion's share of the contributions — 78.7 per cent — came from individuals, the survey found. Religious charities received the most money, nearly $11 billion, followed by health and hospitals ($3.9 billion), education (3.7 billion) social-welfare organizations ($2.3 billion) and arts and humanities ($1.2 billion).

The Council of Better Business Bureaus periodically publishes a list of charities that refuse to disclose voluntarily their expenses and financial assets. It also has devised a list of standards against which the public may judge a charity, these include:

— Charities should make public, on request, their financial report and detailed information on expenses and programs.

— Soliciting organizations should not mail unordered items, such as pens, address labels, stamps, or ties, without disclosing clearly that recipients are under no obligation to pay for or return the item.

— Charity ads should include dates or sources of information when using pictures that otherwise would be misleading.

— Charities should not mail fund-raising appeals disguised as invoices or bills.

BBB maintains files

Charities can be checked

Dow Jones-Ottaway News

There are several ways to learn more about a charity — including the several that are soliciting funds to aid Vietnam refugees — and to receive copies of its financial reports. These include:

— The Better Business Bureau (BBB). Both local offices and the council of better business bureaus, the bureaus' headquarters group, maintain files on about 600 charities soliciting funds. Though not ratings, these files list finances, program, officers, and whether the charity meets the council's general standards.

Individuals may obtain reports on up to three charities by sending a stamped, self-adressed envelope to their local office or to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 1150 17th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

— Local and state agencies. Offices vary, but information usually can be found in the state's Attorney General's, Secretary of State's, licensing, or consumer affairs offices. Some states — including New York, Pennsylvania, Florida, Illinois, and Ohio — maintain extensive files and can report whether a charity is registered to solicit funds or whether any charges are pending against it.

— Charities themselves.

Many charities will send on request their annual report or financial statement. If the information is obscure, charity-monitoring officials suggest, write again and ask for specific cost breakdowns for fund-raising, administration, and programs.

— Vietnam-refugee aid. The U.S. State Department maintains a list of charities soliciting funds to aid Vietnam refugees. Officials in the charities field say such donations should be approached with the same care given any other donation.

One test of validity, charities watchers say, is whether the plan for aid is explicit and sounds worthwhile. Another is whether donations are tax-deductible; some groups aren't tax-exempt, an indication that charity may not be their only concern.

Family Fare Flower show in bloom

By LORA SHARPE
Family Fare Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church became a virtual hot house for flowers Thursday as members of the Monroe County Garden Club filled the church basement with entries in the club Bicentennial Flower Show.

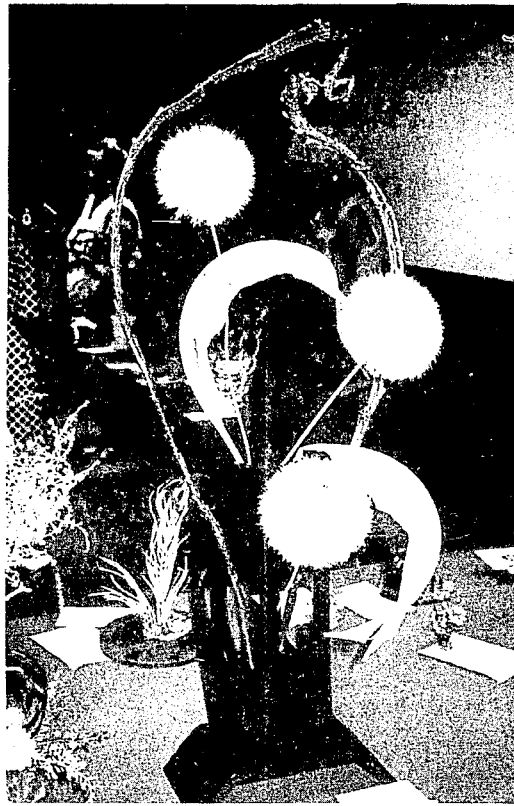

Judged best of show was Evelyn Swingle. Esther Carson won first in both horticulture and artistic design categories. First in the junior class was Trisha Hinelein; Diane Korpanty was second.

The show emphasized some of the old and some of the new in America. Many arrangement categories were based on history of sorts: "Faith of Our Fathers;" "Our Ancestor's Treasures;" and "Miniatures — A Little Bit of Yesteryear."

But contemporary culture and gardening entered the show in arrangements of vegetables and fruits entitled "From the Good Earth" and hanging potted plants, an art which used the craft of macrame.

In the horticulture category, only nine first place prizes — out of a possible 16 — were awarded: Evelyn Swingle won for Floribunda roses; Esther Carson for petunias and herbs; Barbara Gilpin for lilies; and Lois Gebbie for perennials.

Four firsts were named in the potted plant division under horticulture: Esther Carson for cacti; Evelyn Swingle for flowering plant; Jennie Robertson for plant with foliage; and Barbara Gilpin for hening plant.

A first place winner was named in each of the artistic design divisions as follows:

Faith of Our Fathers — Evelyn Swingle; From the Good Earth — Anita Wallace; Our Ancestor's Treasures — Esther Carson; Freedom — Mabel Peters; Last Year's Glory — Mrs. Morgan Rinker; Miniatures — Mabel Peters.

The juniors even had a bi-centennial theme to grow by. Their category was titled "Our Brownies at Work — From a Small Beginning to a Great Nation."

The juniors had really started from seeds and cuttings to produce long stalks of marigolds or great gobs of foliage.

The show continues from noon to 8:30 p.m. today at the church. Flower show entries must be removed between 8:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Chairman of the show is Mrs. Esther H. Carson; club president is Mrs. Faye Reiner.

West End club honors Martin

EFFORT — The Western Pocono Junior Women's Club presented a plaque of appreciation to Monroe County Commissioner Arlington Martin for acting as honorary chairman of the Bike Hike held this spring.

The hike, organized by the club, raised over $4,000 for the Pennsylvania Association of Retarded Citizens (PARC).

The club will maintain a stand at the West End Fair this year. Mrs. Donald Smith, chairman, reported the club will sell: roast beef sandwiches, homemade vegetable soup, strawberry shortcake, crafts, plants, halter tops and pillows.

A workshop to make things for the fair will be held at the home of Mrs. Donald K. Smith, Kresgeville, at 7:30 p.m. July 30.

The club has planned its picnic for members and families on Aug. 24 at the Saylorsburg Playground.

The This 'n That Shop, the club's thrift store, will hold a summer clearance sale this month. A grocery bag of wearing apparel will be sold for $1. The shop, located near Anglemeyer's Dairy in Gilbert, is open from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

The next board meeting of the club will be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 11 at the home of Mrs. Robert Dorshimer, Kunkletown.

The club will hold its next membership meeting at 8 p.m. Aug. 18 at the Effort Village Inn.

Garden patch: Japanese beetles

By JOHN WITHROW
Monroe County
Agricultural Agent

Japanese beetles can be effectively controlled either in the adult or the grub stage. There are chemical, natural, biological, and mechanical methods still available.

Chemicals are still the fastest way to control both the grubs and the beetles. Slightly toxic insecticides such as carbaryl (Sevin), malathion, or rotenone will effectively prevent the adult beetles from damaging your favorite plants.

Moderately toxic chemicals such as chlordane, diazinon, or Dursban can be applied to the soil to control the grubs. These chemicals should be applied and washed into the soil during August and early October.

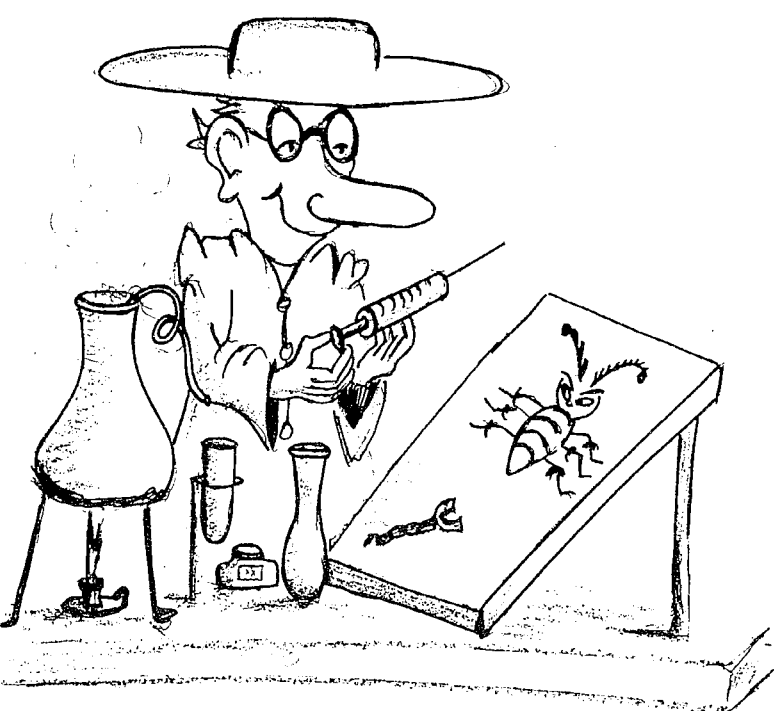

There are some natural controls that are effective against Japanese beetles. Dry weather during the summer kills both the eggs and the newly-hatched grubs. Some small wasp-like parasites attack the grubs.

Birds such as starlings and English sparrows feed on both beetles and grubs. Skunks, crows, and moles are fond of grubs and dig into the turf after them.

The grubs of the Japanese beetle, along with about 40 other species of white grubs, are susceptible to several diseases. The most important is known as milky disease. It kills grubs after causing their normally clear blood to become milky in appearance.

Milky disease was discovered in 1933 in central New Jersey and was promptly recognized as a major natural enemy of the grubs. Preparations containing spores of the bacteria that cause milky disease are available commercially.

I know two laboratories that produce the spores: Fairfax

Biological Laboratory, Inc., Clinton Corners, N.Y., 12514 and Reuter Laboratories, 7555 Gary Road, Manassas, Virginia, 22110. A pound of powder will treat about 4,000 square feet and costs about $8.

The resting stage of the bacteria that cause milky disease are the spores. When applied to the soil in a dust mixture, they are remarkably resistant to dryness or excessive moisture, extreme temperatures and other adverse conditions.

They do not infect other insects, earthworms, birds, warm-blooded animals, humans, or plants. The spores are unharmed after passing through the digestive tracts of birds and small animals that eat the grubs. They remain alive in the soil for many years, and infect successive generations of grubs.

The spore dust is recommended for application only on permanent turf. Cultural practices on cultivated land tends to bury the spores before the disease can become established.

Milky disease will not become established and spread unless some grubs are present. The more numerous the grubs are in the soil, the sooner the bacteria may become established. Several years may elapse before the bacteria have spread over all of a lawn.

Beetle traps don't seem to be as popular as they were a few years back. Home grounds can be protected to some extent in less heavily infested areas with properly constructed traps. They should be baited with geraniol or eugenol, and placed in sunny areas near trees or shrubs.

Thousands of beetles can be caught by jarring them from trees and shrubs onto sheets of plastic or canvas in the early morning. If one has the time, one can knock the beetles individually into an open container of fuel oil.

Treating grass lawns to control the grubs has the advantage of eliminating the mole problem. However, soil treatment does not eliminate all adult Japanese beetles. They can fly to your favorite trees and shrubs from untreated surrounding areas.

Salad, burgers good food buys

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor

Sandwiches, salads and hamburgers were good choices this week for the budget-conscious.

In a three-city survey in New York state, Cornell University's Consumer Education program found unsliced bologna and liverwurst in clubs, or chunks, selling for only 79 and 99 cents a pound in stores in Buffalo, Liberty, N.Y., and New York City. While these cuts are used primarily as sandwich fillings, they're also good protein-stretchers in salads.

Ten other types of cold cuts, including olive and pickle loaves, cooked salami and beef bologna, were priced between $1.50 and $1.75 a pound in the study. Although there is no waste in such meats, they are not always as good a buy nutritionally as raw meats and poultry, which have a much higher protein content.

Among raw meats, about the only good buy in a few cities this week was ground chuck. A Los Angeles supermarket priced the cut at a bargain 69 cents a pound, according to UPI's regular survey of food prices throughout the U.S. This is 6 cents below the average recorded during the base week of March 19 this year.

Retail prices for ground chuck ranged between 86 cents in Pittsburgh and 99 cents in eight other cities, including Buffalo, Phoenix, Raleigh and Washington, D.C. The highs were $1.38 and $1.39 a pound in Atlanta and Miami.

Frozen french fries to go with hamburgers were only five pounds for $1 in the nation's capital, compared with the 43 cents a pound average in March. But the high, in Buffalo, was six cents above the average.

Meat prices reached a record high last week in New York City, said city consumer affairs commissioner Elinor Guggenheimer.

However, she was optimistic about the future.

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports an increase in feed lot activity, which means that prices should start to go down by the fall," she said, adding that prices for fresh potatoes still are rising because the new crop won't be harvested until the end of summer.

There were even a few good buys around in commercially grown fresh produce.

Just Between Us —

By Bobb, Westbrook

Well, the weather finally dried up enough so that the typewriter keys don't punch through the soggy copy paper. It's also getting easier to open the wooden doors without a crowbar and to walk across shag carpet without squishing.

But the biggest beneficiaries of the drying out period have been the golfers. They got wet so many times over the week-end trying to get a round in between showers that they were complaining their joints were rusting like the Tin Woodman's.

It wasn't just the rain but the thunder growling up and down the fairways like a lion seeking its prey. This naturally led to a lot of stories by golfers trying to drip dry about people they'd heard of who had been hit by lightning.

Especially on the golf course where metal clubs, metal cleats on wet shoes, and the general openness of the fairways make anything that stands more than knee high a likely target. "Most golfers get hit by the first bolt of lightning before the storm even begins," said one helpful member of a foursome waiting uncertainly on the tee as the storm which had moved off to be rumbling nearer again.

"They say," she continued, "that if your hair stands up on end you should drop your clubs and throw yourself flat in the nearest ditch." "And ruin my new hairdo that cost me $5.75 not counting tip," objected another member indignantly.

Well, the store of golf stories has also soared in this area as the York County women golfers spent three days here playing at Pocono Manor, Shawnee and Glen Brook on successive days, all of them in sunshine for a change.

Fortunately, they weren't due at Glen Brook on Monday since for the first time in memory the course was closed down for a whole day in mid-summer to preserve the saturated greens from even the lightest-footed golfer.

Anyway, everybody had a wonderful time, and just before boarding the bus for home, the York Women serenaded the Glen Brook Women with original words to some exceptionally fine harmony. In their goodbye song, with its references to the swinging bridge and other local hazards, one of the members pantomimed her sentimental grief by mopping her eye. So great is the power of suggestions that some of the audience actually did get tears in their eyes.

I wish there was some power of suggestion to get rid of the numerous new types of insects which seem to be thriving in all this wet weather. In addition to the return of the Japanese beetle and the tent caterpillar, there are also strange insects with big pinchers which aren't content to stay outdoors but are beginning to invade some houses.

They sound like what the Green Thumb described as earwigs. But whatever they are they look very unpleasant and along with the annual invasion of carpenter ants and an unusually large number of spiders, indoors, and well-raising gnats and small stinging insects outdoors, people are beginning to feel besieged.

Maybe we're worrying about the wrong things: Thermonuclear pollution, the dangers of war, or invasion from outer-space. Maybe we should be thinking about protecting the planet from being taken over by the insects. I take all these stories about South American killer bees and all those late-late movies about giant spiders taking over cities very seriously.

LEO

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Go after the big gains but do not expect to have things your way all along the line. Be prepared for some opposition and you can meet it more easily.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Introduce a new note — perhaps a new approach — to give more spark to day's doings. Output will substantially improve.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — As with many others, you have real cause for optimism now. There's much to attain through the advantages offered — both in business and personal interests.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — You should have new ambition and incentive under day's excellent influences. An interesting business transaction could prove highly profitable.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Direct action can be effective — IF you have accurate information, blueprints. Otherwise, take the detour that means safety, a reduced speed to prevent mishap.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — You can now find a new way to display your abilities and capabilities but don't try the road of mixing business and pleasure.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Make your schedule a flexible one. There are possibilities of changes and variations in certain situations — all promising to be beneficial.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Don't sidestep obligations in favor of more desirable activities. You have a lot going for you, so it would be foolish to offset efforts of the past.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Don't undertake anything without knowing proper procedure. Find out how associates think and feel. Excellent progress indicated through alert thinking and action.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Your intuition should be strong now; but double-check to make sure you are not overlooking small details. Thus, all should go well.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Pay no attention to dissenters or pessimists. Go about your work and other activities with good will and a bit of finesse. You can have an unusually satisfactory day.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Business and financial matters slated for immediate advancement; also for future gains. But take no risks; conservative management must be stressed.

YOUR BORN TODAY are endowed with many qualities with which to win first-rate success: a strong individuality, a genius for leadership and unusual fine gifts of organization and salesmanship. Do try to curb a tendency toward overaggressiveness, however, or you could make many enemies as you follow your road to the top. Your versatility and gregariousness are outstanding and, though extremely progressive in your thinking, you have a fondness for the old; would make an excellent dealer in arts and antiques. Other fields in which you could excel: the stage, the law, politics or, in business, as a manager of large enterprises.

Bidding quiz

You have the following hand, both sides vulnerable:

♠AK84 ♥AQ93 ♦7 ♣Q642

1. Left-hand opponent bids One Spade and your partner bids Two Clubs. What would you bid after right-hand opponent passes?

2. Right-hand opponent bids One Diamond, which you double. What would you bid after partner responds One Spade, both opponents having passed?

3. You bid One Spade and partner responds One No-trump. What would you bid now?

4. Partner bids One Diamond and the next player doubles. What would you bid now?

5. Right-hand opponent opens Three Diamonds, which you double. Your partner responds Three Notrump. What would you bid now?

1. Two spades. It is hard to conceive of a hand partner could have that would not offer a good chance for at least five clubs. But rather than leap directly to five, it is better to cuebid spades first. This has the advantage of encouraging partner to bid six after you later jump-raise him to five clubs. A slam in clubs is by no means impossible.

2. Two spades. Partner may have a simply dreadful hand and it is inadvisable to do more than give him a single raise. Game is highly unlikely unless partner bids again over two spades. The double, in conjunction with the spade raise, shows approximately the values you actually have. A raise to three is admittedly tempting, but unfortunately you lack the values to guarantee nine tricks opposite a forced response.

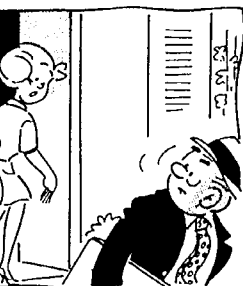

3. Two hearts. A pass or two clubs might prove better, but, counting all factors, two hearts will do best in the long run.

4. Redouble. The redouble does not guarantee support for partner's suit, though you may have it. Rather, it indicates 10 or more points and suggests that the best result may be obtained by letting the opponents play the hand — doubled.

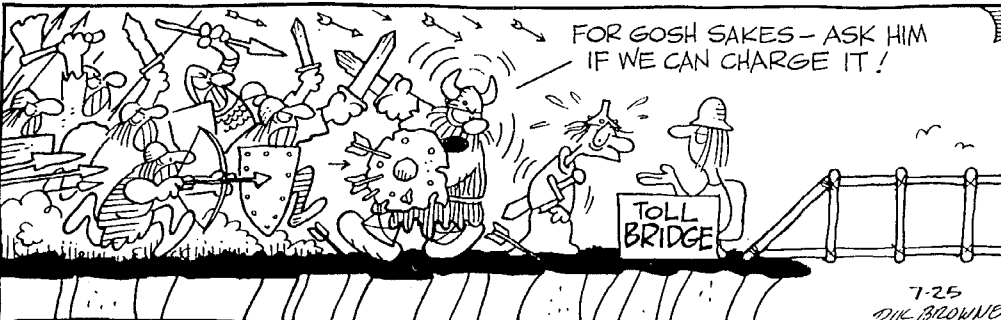

5. Pass. You would have preferred a suit response, as your hand lends itself more to suit play than notrump, but all you can do now is accept partner's judgment that the best spot is notrump. It would be too dangerous to start looking for a suit contract at this stage.

DIAMOND JIM'S

* Lobster that Diamond Jim would be proud of. The Mountain's UNIQUE 1½ pounds of Lobster stuffed with Crabmeat. And its own claws prepared only as a true Bostonian could. No mess, no fuss, just lots of good eating. A gastronomic delight. We believe our Lobsters, prepared in this manner . . . are the finest anywhere.

* Shrimp Ke-Bob. Large, tender, Juicy Shrimp resting on a bed of rice, blanketed with Parmigan and Tomato Sauce. Prepared as delightfully as Nellie resting over our Bar.

* Clam lovers of the world rejoice. Clams Demetri has arrived at Diamond Jim's. Its waiting for its fans to devour them. Imagine fresh Clams stuffed with a special Garlic Dressing topped with crisp bacon.

* These and other fine foods such as Prime Rib, Filets and Sole are all here for your enjoyment in Mountainhome. Just pick up your phone and call 595-2533 for Reservations or to answer any questions you might be wondering about on how such good food can become a reality in the Poconos.

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI . . .
Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijsttafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Rice-Table buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

Youngsters help craftsman mold his wares at Peters Valley

Peters Valley Craft Fair scheduled for weekend

LAYTON, N.J. — Sixty craftsmen will produce and sell their handiwork at the Peters Valley Craft Fair near Layton, N.J., July 26-27.

The activities will take place in the Peters Valley Craft Village, in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, against the background of folk music and the aromas of home-baked cakes, pies and gingerbread.

Craftsmen have been juried in (selected by a panel of professionals on the basis of their artistry and skill) from all over the country, and are holding classes in crafts such as, jewelry-making, woodworking, blacksmithing, ceramics, and weaving.

Items made by the craftsmen will be sold at the fair as well as the Peters Valley store. During the summer, students may enroll in one of four sessions, each of two to three weeks duration, which run from the end of June to the end of August.

Peters Valley is a resident community of craftsmen, interns and students. Craftsmen live in the village throughout the year and receive room and board.

Interns study for a 13-week period which coincides with a college semester. Interns and students who come to the community for the summer program pay $60 a week tuition plus $60 room and board if they decide to stay in the village.

Special workshops throughout the year coincide with the various interests students express. For example, on April 26-27 there was a seminar on steambending, the art of curving wood with moist heat for items such as rocking chairs.

Visitors are invited to ask questions at the studios from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. The craft store is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

In 1970, the National Park Service cooperated with local citizens to establish Peters Valley Craft Village. It is administered by Peters Valley Craftsmen, Inc. in cooperation with Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

Attorney joins McDade staff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, has named a Susquehanna County attorney to his staff.

Raymond S. Wittig of New Milford will be minority counsel to the Government Procurement and International Trade Subcommittee of the House Small Business Committee on which McDade is the ranking minority member.

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Wild Animal Farm, Rte. 611 one mile south of Stroudsburg, is featuring lectures on natural history on July 26 and Aug. 2.

Prehistoric Oddities at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm will be discussed July 26, and on Aug. 2, Flightless Birds will be featured. Admission fee to the farm entitles visitors to hear the lectures.

The farm is also planning an exhibit of black and white photographs of wildlife during the week of Aug. 11-17. The following rules will apply to all persons wishing to enter pictures in the exhibit:

— Any subject relating to wildlife will be accepted.

— Photographs must be black and white, 8x10, and mounted on mat board measuring 11x14 inches.

— There is no limit on the number of entries by one person.

— Each picture must have the name and address of entrant on the back. If entrant wishes the photograph be returned, a stamped, self-addressed container must be sent with the entry.

— Prizes will be awarded at the end of the exhibit to three of the best pictures, to be judged by a team.

— All pictures must reach the Pocono Wild Animal Farm by Aug. 4, 1975. The admission fee to the farm will entitle any visitor to view the exhibit.

Horse show scheduled in Gilbert

GILBERT — The Pleasant Valley All Sports Club will sponsor its fourth annual open horse show on July 27 at the West End Fairgrounds in Gilbert; the show will be the largest this year in the Penn-Jersey Horse Show Association circuit.

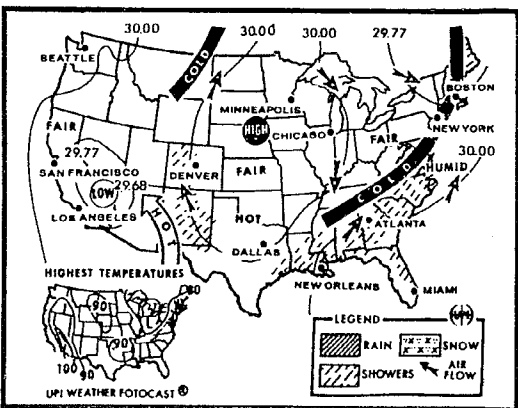

Two years ago, the sports club-sponsored show, which annually raises money for the sports programs at Pleasant Valley High School, only featured a one-ring, one judge show.

This year two top United States judges, Mrs. Jean Wright of New Jersey, and Joe Vanorio of New York, are expected to review more than 500 horses from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York which are expected to be entered in the 40 classes in the show.

There will be five grand and reserve championships in the following categories: western, English, Arabian, Appaloosa, and gymkhana. In addition, private business and individuals can sponsor classes in the show for $15 each.

For the Record

The name of a surviving sister, Mrs. Vernon Hazard of Rhode Island, was inadvertently omitted from the obituary of James Altomose Thursday. Another sister, Mrs. Robert Smith, is from Newfoundland.

Pet show winners announced

EAST STROUDSBURG — The playground staff of Dansbury Park in East Stroudsburg has announced the winners of its annual pet show, held this week at the park.

In the smallest pet category, a hamster named Brownie, owned by Darla Heller, took first place. Cheech the guinea pig, owned by Michelle Rush, won second prize.

Rex Pierre and Brutus, two dogs owned by Mike Gossic, took first and second places respectively in the largest pet category.

First place ribbon for cutest pet went to Emily the dog, owned by Vicki Hilbert, and second place was awarded to Blondy the dog, owned by Len Argot.

The awards for most unusual pet were first, Juehead the guinea pig, owned by Rodney Decker, and second, Seetar the cat, owned by Joan Klingler.

Nipper the dog won first place for most obedient pet.

SALE-ING, SALE-ING — For window shoppers who depend on plate glass to come between them and temptation, Stroudsburg's Sidewalk Days Sale is a veritable nightmare. But for those who shop with a passion, Main Street Stroudsburg is the place to be. Whatever the shopper may be looking for it's at his fingertips to try on, eat, or wheel away. Bill Doleiden, right, of South Stroudsburg, beats a hasty retreat up Broad Street with his booty, while Todd Dimity, 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dimity of Stroudsburg, tries an ice cream cone on for size. Shukaitis misses deadline

PHILADELPHIA — Monroe County Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis who traveled to Philadelphia Wednesday to testify at a public hearing on the Tocks Island Project never got to speak.

Mrs. Shukaitis explained during the county commissioners meeting Thursday that the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) which conducted the hearings, previously told her she would be given a chance to speak "in early evening."

Mrs. Shukaitis said she arrived in Philadelphia about 5 p.m. but the hearings were over. She said the DRBC did accept a written copy of her statement for the record and a copy of The Minisink, a book prepared for the Four County Task Force to cite historic areas of the valley.

Mrs. Shukaitis had suspended her county duties since Friday to prepare for the appearance and was said to be writing her testimony Monday when she was absent from a meeting of the board of commissioners.

Damage widespread

Electric storm jolts county

STROUDSBURG — Utility crews, police and firemen were kept busy through the night cleaning up after an electrical storm passed through the county around 9 p.m. Thursday.

Jim Walton of Pennsylvania Power and Light said four crews would be working through the night to restore service that was disrupted throughout the county.

Walton said the bulk of the calls were in Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and the West End with scattered calls in surrounding areas.

Most of the disruptions were caused by power lines downed by fallen trees with some outages caused by lightning striking transformer fuses, Walton said.

Dick Dreas of Metropolitan Edison reported many scattered calls from Stroudsburg to Dingmans Ferry.

"We're getting calls like crazy. We've been hit pretty hard all over the place," Dreas said.

Power was also reportedly disrupted on Main Street

Police action

Area police and firemen reported fallen trees that blocked streets and damaged parked cars.

State police at Milford said Pennsylvania Department of Transportation crews were called to remove a tree across Route 590 south of Hawley.

Trees reportedly were downed by wind along Washington and Elk Streets in East Stroudsburg.

A six to eight inch diameter limb was reported to be across a car parked on Washington Street at the Elks Club.

Firemen received a report of a Bell Telephone line that was down and sparking on Ridgeway Street.

The sudden heavy rains also caused minor accidents. State police at Fern Ridge reported an accident without serious injuries on Route 209 near Brodheadsville in front of the Jopet Farms ice cream stand. Further details were not available late Thursday night.

Monroe planning officer key to funding land plan

STROUDSBURG — Hiring a planning administrator who meets requirements of the state Department of Community Affairs is a must if Monroe County hopes to get funding for developing a comprehensive land use plan.

The county planning commission is currently reviewing applications for a planning administrator to replace Douglas E. Williams Jr., who resigned in March.

According to Dallas A. Dollase, director of the Bureau of Planning for the Department of Community Affairs, said the funding for the 1975-76 fiscal year has already been decided by the state.

If Monroe County was interested in receiving some of the money, it would have to wait until next year. Dollase said of about $100 million available this year in the nation, Pennsylvania received $1.6 million which it distributed to 40 counties.

Each county must have a land use plan developed by an Aug. 22, 1977 deadline. Dollase said if the deadline is not met, a county will be ineligible to receive future money for updating or expanding the plan.

Besides having a planner who meets the state requirements, Dollase said before the funds are granted, his office must be confident the county in question will meet the plan deadline.

Among the requirements for being a qualified planner are at least a bachelor's degree in planning or a related field and from three to seven years' experience, depending on education.

A comprehensive plan completed in February by Richard S. Cowan of Quakertown was rejected by the county planning commission. The county refused to pay a $16,000 bal-

Minisink history study complete

STROUDSBURG — After six months of research and writing, a book on the history of the Minisink Valley has been published at a cost of $5,620 for printing and about $5,680 in salaries for two of the authors from Monroe County.

Patricia Valence and Russell Woodling, Monroe County employees under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), prepared the book with the help of Dennis Bertland of New Jersey.

Mrs. Valence and Woodling have been working on the book since February at salaries of $284 biweekly each.

The Monroe County Commissioners Thursday commended the book's authors for their work. The 208-page book was compiled at the request of the Four County Task Force to describe the historic value of the valley which would be destroyed if the Tocks Island Dam is built.

A total of 2,000 copies of the book were printed; 400 for Pike County; 500 for Warren County (N.J.); and 550 each for Monroe County and Sussex County (N.J.).

The cost of printing was $2.81 per book. Monroe County Commissioners Thursday voted to sell copies of the book for $5 each.

The book is divided into 12 sections including Indians, transportation, agriculture and development.

In other matters Thursday, the commissioners approved paying $272 for a one-year service contract with the 3M Com-

Air crash inquiry continues

MILFORD — Federal and state officials continue to investigate the cause of a Pike County plane crash that took the lives of four persons last weekend.

The plane, which crashed into the side of a mountain near Pecks Pond, was discovered Monday by state police at Milford.

Gary Sayers, chief of aviation safety at the state Bureau of Aviation, said, "It is too early to determine cause of the crash at this point."

He said a joint investigation is being conducted by the bureau as well as representatives of the National Transportation Safety Board.

According to Sayers, officials inspected the site of the crash Tuesday and Thursday. The site is in a densely wooded area owned by the Blooming Grove Fishing and Hunting Club.

"The only information we know now is that the weather was marginal when the pilot took off," Sayers said.

Thundershowers and heavy clouds were reported over New Jersey early Saturday when the pilot, Frank Kipkasha, took off from the Caldwell-Wright Airport near Newark, N.J. at 8:45 a.m. Kipkasha's destination was the Cherry Ridge Airport near Honesdale, Wayne County.

Sayers said a full investigation would still have to include reviewing the pilot's certification, evaluating the condition of the plane before take-off and determining weather conditions along the route.

EAST STROUDSBURG — The board of Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County Thursday voted unanimously to dismiss their Relocation Director, Mrs. Jeannette Saurina.

It was the first dismissal in the history of the 13-year-old agency.

The roll call vote was taken after the board recessed for a 25-minute executive session.

No reasons for the dismissal were given. Board chairman Elmer Christine said the board was following procedures outlined by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Executive director William Blackburn was directed to advise Mrs. Saurina of the "charges" in writing. She will have 15 days after receipt of the charges in which to request a hearing.

Christine said the rules are set up to "protect her rights down to the day she has the hearing. If she is reinstated it would be a shame to have this in the public media."

Blackburn said, "I am sorry it had to come to this," after the vote was taken.

"It's the first time anything like this has ever happened," Christine said. "It is disturbing and unpleasant to me in particular."

When questioned after the meeting Christine said Mrs. Saurina "has a general idea of what she's done."

She was suspended from her job July 17 without pay.

Contacting by telephone at her home Mrs. Saurina said, "I have absolutely no idea what is going on. I have not seen or heard what the charges are at all. It is up to my attorney now."

Mrs. Saurina has engaged Stroudsburg attorney George Royle to represent her.

Royle could not be reached for comment.

Mrs. Saurina has worked for the Redevelopment Authority for more than 20 years. Her 1975 salary was set at $10,000.

In other business, the board voted to approve a one-year, $33,000 contract with the Borough of East Stroudsburg to administer its Community Development program.

Senate confirms Coleman

HARRISBURG — Robert J. Coleman of Kunkletown R.D. 1 has been confirmed by the state Senate as treasurer for Monroe County under a package of executive nominations that passed 48-0.

Coleman said he will tender his resignation as office manager at Herbert R. Imbt of Saylorsburg today and expects to start full time as treasurer Monday. Coleman has been overseeing the operation of the office since last week when he was nominated to replace Thomas R. Joyce.

Joyce began his new job as superintendent of highways Thursday.

Monroe court hears three criminal cases

STROUDSBURG — Two persons were placed on probation and a juvenile was sent to a detention home during proceedings in Monroe County Court Thursday.

Robert Varanavage of Mahanoy City was fined $300 and placed on probation for two years for receiving stolen property.

President Judge Arlington W. Williams also ordered Varanavage to pay the cost of prosecution. Terms of the probation include not owning or possessing a firearm.

Glenda Snyder of Lehighton was placed on one year's probation and ordered to pay the cost of prosecution. She was found guilty last October of a violation of the controlled substance act.

In juvenile court, a 17-year-old Saylorsburg youth was sentenced to Camp Hill for an indefinite period of time.

He was previously found to be a juvenile delinquent for possession of drugs and for escaping from custody on two separate occasions.

You just can't make good hay unless the sun shines

By DEBORAH ENYEART
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — This month's heavy rains have caused problems for local farmers who claim they're having trouble harvesting their crops.

"It certainly has been a problem for everyone," said Robert Gould, who farms 285 acres in Effort.

Gould said his wheat crop is about half what he expected it would be and has smaller kernels.

"I thought it would be the nicest wheat I've had in a long time. It came through the winter well. But now, it isn't coming out as well as it looked standing," Gould explained.

Mrs. Neal Murphy, whose husband farms over 400 acres at Kunkletown R.D. 1, said they are also having trouble with their wheat crop.

She said the wheat has been browning and down on the ground. "The wheat just isn't what it should have been," she added.

Wilmer Kreger, who farms 250 acres at Kunkletown R.D. 1, reported he had "quite a hard time" harvesting his hay as well as his wheat.

He said he had to dry his wheat in a crop dryer, which he explained is an "expensive proposition."

"I couldn't make first quality hay — or little of it — because of the weather," Kreger said, adding the weather had dealt him "quite some loss."

The Murphys also reported trouble harvesting hay. "It usually takes two to three weeks to make hay. But here it is the end of July and we're just getting in the first load that should have been done in mid-June," Mrs. Murphy said.

"All the grains have been a big headache. You can't get in to harvest them," she said, adding that harvesting must be done when the crop is dry.

Kreger agreed. "When the crops are down and tangled, it's really a chore to harvest the grain. It's not as fast when they're lodged and laying on the ground," he said.

Farmers are still watching their corn and potato crops. "There hasn't been too much of a problem here with potatoes. Too much rain causes blight, so we may have to watch it if the rain keeps going," Mrs. Murphy said.

"The corn looks good, but we still need a week or two of nice weather for that, too. The stalks look good, but the corn isn't here yet," Gould said.

He was reluctant to predict what the financial loss of his crop might be. "If you only get half a crop, you only get half of what you figured," he said.

John Withrow, of the county extension service, said there isn't anything a farmer or gardener can do for water-damaged crops.

"They sort of take it in stride, but they can't do anything about it," Withrow said.

Monday a local resident brought a potato plant that was rotting at the stem into Withrow's office.

"I didn't know what the problem was so I sent a sample to the plant disease clinic at Penn State. But, there was nothing he could do," Withrow explained.

In most forms of root rot, the leaves turn yellow, because of a lack of oxygen, the stems turn brown, and the roots become black instead of white.

Withrow said there are other problems caused by moist, hot weather besides root rot.

"Apple trees and ornamental crab apple trees can become loaded with scab. It just grows like mad in hot, humid weather," he said.

Scab grows as brown spots on leaves which eventually fall off the trees. It can also grow on the fruit.

"Sometimes it grows deeper into the skin, which makes an inferior product when you're trying to sell the apples, but you can still use them for applesauce or something," he added.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Terry Miller provided the pitching and left the hitting up to the rest of his teammates Thursday night as Twin Boro clinched the District 20 Senior Little League championship with an 8-3 victory over Pocono North-South.

Miller held the hard-hitting Pocono team to just three hits and fanned ten batters as Twin Boro defeated Pocono for the second straight game in tournament play.

Twin Boro will now move into inter-district competition at 5:30 p.m. today against District 21 at Levittown Continental Memorial Field.

The winners struck for the only runs Miller turned out to need in the opening inning with a two-out rally.

Jeff Wert, who scored three runs, blooped a single to left, and moved to third on Lue Nase's line drive base hit.

Pocono catcher Tim O'Boyle tried to nail Nase at second after retrieving a wild pitch and threw it into center field for the first of seven Pocono errors.

Directions to Levittown

Fans who plan to travel to Twin Boro's Senior Little League tournament game tonight against District 21 in Levittown can use the following directions to the field.

From Stroudsburg, take Rte. 611 South to the East-West junction of the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Take the turnpike East to exit 29 (U.S. Rte. 13). Travel North on Rte. 13 for about three-and-one-half miles until you reach Mill Creek Parkway. Turn onto the Mill Creek Parkway and go about one block to Tullytown Rd. to Levittown Continental Memorial Field.

While Miller was busy holding Pocono's batters at bay, his teammates collected four insurance runs.

After play was halted for the second time by thundershowers in the top of the third inning, Twinboro roughed up Lindsey for two more runs with the aid of some sloppy Pocono fielding.

Wert reached on Transue's throwing error and scored on Nase's double to right center. Mery followed with another double to left field to score Nase.

Two more Pocono errors — a throwing error by Sterba and a dropped fly ball by Weiss — gave Twinboro a pair of runs in the fourth.

Twin Boro scored its final run in the seventh. Nase's third hit of the game, a walk to Mery, and a single by Smith loaded the bases with nobody out.

Dave Barnes hit a slow bouncer to the box and Lindsey's throw home forced Nase at the plate. But when Pocono tried to get Smith going into second, the throw hit him and allowed Mery to score.

White Sox sweep Yanks, 4-3, 1-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Brian Downing, whose 11th inning homer produced an opening game 4-3 win for the Chicago White Sox, scored the only run of the game in the nightcap when Bill Melton was hit by a pitched ball with the bases full for a 1-0 decision and a sweep of a doubleheader against the New York Yankees.

Downing got into the second game as a pinch runner for Pete Varney, who opened the eighth with a single. He advanced on Pat Kelly's sacrifice, reached second on Bebe Richard's single and third when Ken Henderson was walked intentionally. Deron Johnson struck out but Melton was hit by Dick Tidrow's 2-2 pitch to force in the winning run.

It was the seventh time the Yankees have been shut out this season and the fifth time the Sox have won by a shutout. Larry Gura took the loss, his third against three wins in the nightcap, working 7 1-3 innings before Tidrow took over after Richard's hit.

Red Sox, 6-2

BLOOMINGTON (UPI) — Jim Rice slugged his 16th homer — a two-run 410 shot over the centerfield fence in the first inning — to spark the Boston Red Sox to a 6-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Thursday.

Rick Wise coasted to his 13th victory, allowing nine hits. He struck out seven and walked only one.

Rice's homer came off loser Joe Decker and scored Denny Doyle, who had walked.

Boston got a run in the third when Decker walked Cecil Cooper and Rice to lead off the inning and earn an early shower. Dwight Evans singled off reliever Ray Corbin to knock in Cooper.

Bob Heise stroked a bases loaded single in the fifth to drive in Rice, who had singled, and Evans, who had doubled.

The Red Sox added a run in the seventh. Rick Miller walked, raced to third on an error by shortstop Jerry Terrell and strolled home on Corbin's wild pitch.

Little league

EFFORT — Tom Conklin tripped and John Matiskells hurled a four-hitter and struck out nine Thursday, but Sciota took better advantage of loser Kevin Costenbader's 15 walks to hand Effort an 8-4 West End Little League setback.

In a second game, Kresgeville scored most of its runs with the help of 17 errors by the Lakers in earning a 17-6 victory. Allan Johnson got the win and also had three hits, scored four runs and banded out two doubles. Brian Hummer had three straight hits, including a double and triple, for the Lakers.

Nicklaus, Weiskopf share suspended Canadian lead

MONTREAL (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus slogged home with a course record five-under-par 65 Thursday to tie Tom Weiskopf for the first round lead in the rain-interrupted $200,000 Canadian Open.

Nicklaus was on the course at six under par through 12 holes when a violent thunderstorm erupted over the par 70, 6,629-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club, delaying play for three hours.

Play resumed at 7 p.m. EDT, and Nicklaus dropped a stroke to par—and into a tie with Weiskopf—with a three-putt bogey on the par-4, 391-yard eighth hole. He played the back nine first, as did Weiskopf.

Play was finally suspended due to darkness at 8:45 p.m., with nine players still to finish their round before the second round begins at 8 a.m. today.

Nicklaus and Weiskopf held a two-stroke lead over six players, all of whom also broke the competitive course record of 68 in this first time the U.S. touring pros have played the Royal Montreal layout. Tied with 67 were South African Gary Player, Bob E. Smith, John Schlee, Mike McCullough, Pat Fitzsimons and Australian David Graham.

Arnold Palmer, who took a double bogey five at the 129-yard, par-3 17th, was tied with 13 players at 68. Johnny Miller, who is $129 behind Nicklaus with $180,670 on this year's PGA money list, had an even and not scored as well. It was fair to good golf and I got the best of it."

Tom Weiskopf was in the clubhouse with his 65 before the rains came but more than half the field of 153 was still out on the course.

Nicklaus, with $180,799 and three titles this year, including the Masters, indicated that the long delay prevented him from really tearing up the course.

"Sure, it's hard to get your concentration back," he said. "It's a long time out there, we were out seven - and - a half hours. The last six holes (after the delay) I never came close to making a putt."

"I'd leave one short, knock one by, then I finally missed one (on the eighth hole)."

Weiskopf, who came into this tournament fifth on the PGA money list with $129,565, but has won only at Greensboro last April, started his round with birdies on the first two holes en route to a four-under 31 on the par 35 front side.

His only bogie of the round came at the par-3, 176-yard fifth hole, where he bunkered his tee shot, exploded out to about 10 feet from the cup and two putted.

He played the backside in one-under-par 34, getting his only birdie of the nine at the 525-yard par 5-13, where he chipped to within three feet and sank the putt.

After his round, the tall, slender, 32-year-old Ohioan said: "I've played better golf

Pocono Women's softball

STROUDSBURG — Jane Alwood and Jane Ramagli had three hits each and Gail Sherwood picked up the victory Thursday as Foxwood Farms crushed Stout's Mower, 26-6, in Pocono Women's Softball League action. Nancy Milwood suffered the loss.

In another game, Judy Fleming and Bridget Hippler both homered and Maureen Shields was the winner as Happy Hour smashed El Toro, 35-3.

44 cars enter August 3 Purolator 500 at Pocono

LONG POND — A total of 44 entries have been received for the Second Annual Purolator 500 at Pocono Winston Cup Grand National race, thus assuring the $102,075 event of a full starting field of 40 cars.

"We're pleased with the response of the competitors," said William J. Budzinski, Purolator's Director of Publicity. "When we conceived the Purolator 500, we did so with the intention of making it the Grand National showcase of the northeast. It seems that, in this, our second year, it is becoming just that."

Every driver who has recorded a Grand National victory this season has entered the Purolator 500. Richard Petty, the present point leader with eight victories, youthful Darrell Waltrip, Daytona 500 winner Benny Parsons; Mercury driver David Pearson, Winston 500 winner Buddy Baker, Cale Yarborough and Bobby Allison lead the entry list.

Other entrants include Dave Marcis in the K & K Insurance Dodge, Dick Brooks in the Truxmore Ford, Coo Coo Marlin and Richie Panch of Daytona Beach in the Grey-Rock Chevrolet.

Three of the leading candidates for Rookie of the Year honors and the $10,000 Carling award that goes with it have entered, they are Bruce Hill of Union City, Ga., Bruce Jacob of Indianapolis, Indiana and Ferrell Harris of Pikesville, Ky.

Pocono Raceway opens for practice Friday, August 1, and the entire field qualifies on Saturday, August 2.

Nazareth Speedway
NAZARETH — Nazareth Speedway will present a gigantic four-25 lap feature event program for modified stock cars on Sunday starting at 6:30 p.m.

The sportsman stocks will also be on hand to compete in a full card of heats plus a 15 lap feature. The modifieds will also run heats to determine the 24 starters in the first 25 lap main event. Over 120 racers are expected to battle in the program.

This show promises to be spectacular in every respect since Nazareth has not presented a racing program since July 3.

On Friday at 8:00 the street stocks will converge on the speedway to compete in a series of heats plus a 15 lap feature. Tom Zeiner will be on hand to defend last week's victory. The competition is very close in this division with well over 50 machines competing each week.

The rules for building this division are designed to keep the costs low. They are very closely matched and run three and even four abreast around the Nazareth oval. Top competitors include Earl Paules, Ernest Christman, Mike Allen, Jack Zeiner, Dave Neilsen, Rod Yeakel and Rich Betz.

Dorney Park

ALLENTOWN — Roy Kunkle will return to Dorney Park Speedway on Saturday night to battle for his second straight sportsman victory. The races will start at 7:45 p.m. with heats for the sportsman and late model machines. A 25 lap sportsman main and a 20 lap feature will be run.

Other top asphalt drivers will be on hand including Paul Bauscher, Dennis Bailey, Del Hahn, Daryl Amey, Tim Parry, Larry Saeger, Gus Lewis, Neil Beech, and Bob Eck.

Orange County

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. — Stock car fans will be treated to an extra feature race this Saturday at the Orange County Fair Speedway in Middletown, N.Y.

The 20 lap event of last Saturday for the sportsmen was not run due to the late hour and will be the first race on the program.

The full thirteen events for sportsmen and modifieds will than follow with race time remaining at the usual 6:30 p.m. For the first time this season, point leader Jerry Howard of Milford, N.J., has been dropped from the top spot. Harry Behrent of Florida,

N.Y., has gained the lead with consistent running and top finishes. He leads the parade by six points.

Summer Nationals

The KARS Super Sprint Summer Nationals set for Flemington Fair Speedway on Tuesday, July 29, will be the most important race for the fourth annual series as it is the final event of the campaign and will decide the championship.

When the supers head to Flemington the set up for the race will be different from the first five shows in the series as the feature will go the 50 lap distance and time trials will not be run. Instead of trials, heats and consolations will take place for the championship show.

In the line-up, expected entries include KARS regulars Lynn Paxton, Kramer Williamson, Smokey Snellbaker, Steve Smith, Jan Myers, Bob Brooks, Dub & Van May, Bobby Allen, Paul Pitzer plus entrants from all over the country.

All the action will get underway at 8 p.m. Rain date is July 30.

Horsham hosts ladies' tourney

HORSHAM, Pa., (UPI) — Women pro golfers will make their second appearance in the metropolitan Delaware Valley Area today when the 54-hole George Washington Ladies Golf Classic gets underway at the Hidden Springs Country Club here.

The $40,000 tournament which has a $5,700 first prize is being held about 65 miles from Atlantic City, N.J., where the U.S. Women's Open was held last week and won by four strokes by Sandra Palmer.

The new Open champion, who stands only five feet, one and one-half inches, is one of the favorites in the field for this event on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour.

Also in the field of some 70 golfers will be Sandra Haynie, the defending champion in the sixth annual Classic, and JoAnne Carner, Carol Mann, Kathy Whitworth, Laura Baugh, Jane Blalock and Amy Alcott.

Janet LePera was the leading pro in the pro-am Wednesday at the par-73 course, Miss Baugh was second and Miss Haynie third.

Miss Haynie won six tournaments last year, earning more than $74,000. She won here by five shots over Mrs. Carner.

There was a threat of some heavy downpours Thursday night which could hamper play. Warm weather with temperatures in the upper 80's was forecast for today with a 60 percent possibility of showers.

Extra facilities added for Classic fans

Monticello opens up its infield

MONTICELLO, N. Y. — There'll be something of the festive spirit of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness at the Mighty M on Sunday when for the first time in its history, the infield of the Sullivan County harness track will be opened to patrons in order to give racing fans an unusual and intimate view of the Monticello-N.Y.C. OTB Classic, the richest event in standardized history with an estimated purse of $250,000.

Robert Schoonmaker, Monticello's assistant general manager, has announced that in order to accommodate the anticipated tremendous throng which will be on hand to witness the epic pace for ten New York-bred 3-year old pacers, the infield has been converted into a spectator and wagering area with every creature comfort of the public fully provided.

"We have installed a full range of pari-mutuel windows, food and refreshment stands have been erected as have been complete sanitary facilities. In short, our infield will be a delightful place to spend a pleasant afternoon and will offer a view of the exciting races not ordinarily witnessed by even the most veteran and educated harness racing fan."

Schoonmaker said that those wishing to occupy the infield should arrange their schedule to arrive well before 2 p.m., the cut-off time when the public will no longer be permitted to cross the track before the races start. Provision has been made for pedestrian traffic to and from the infield after the third and seventh races.

The Monticello-N.Y.C. OTB Classic will be held in the seventh race. In addition, there will be two other stellar paces featuring those 15 of the 25 final eligibles who did not survive the elimination events for the Classic itself.

All seats at Monticello will be reserved for the Inaugural. Choice seats are still available and are on sale at $1.00 each at the track's Admission Office on the main floor.

Filion gets break

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — Ben Webster had a difficult decision to make a week ago. He was scheduled to drive both Echo Brook Phil and Tango Byrd who drew in the same elimination division of the Monticello-N.Y.C. OTB Classic.

Neither colt is in his stable so he had the option of teaming either one. He chose Tango Byrd who was starting from the pole. Joe Aloy, co-owner, breeder and trainer of Echo Brook Phil, was in a turmoil until Herve Filion agreed to drive his colt for him.

Tango Byrd, bet down to 1-2, threw a shoe leaving, encountered considerable road trouble during the mile, and Webster did a masterful job to finish third and qualify him for the final. Filion got Phil home in front.

In the main event this Sunday, the ten best three year old pacers bred in New York State will vie for the richest purse in harness racing guaranteed at $250,000, but it could go for considerably more.

Webster and Filion will drive the same horses, but this time Aloy's homebred drew the rail while Tango Byrd has the eight hold in the ten horse field. In between are the celebrated filies, Silk Stockings and Tartport Hap respective winners of the two other eliminations, along with Golden Fella, Spirit Hap, JR. Call and Say No More. Momentum and Shirley's Beau are the two trailers.

Ann Landers

Angry friend

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I was the victim of a burglary. The story appeared in the newspaper. I immediately began to receive phone calls from all sorts of people, giving me hell for being so stupid as to own "valuable things." I was chewed out unmercifully for keeping jewelry and a fine coin collection in my home.

The last straw was yesterday when an old friend phoned me at the office and became hysterical. She called me every dirty name she could think of — screaming at the top of her lungs. Several people near me could hear every word she said. I was so humiliated I finally hung up on her.

It seems the police questioned this woman's son about the burglary. I was asked to give them a list of everyone who had been in my home for the past two months. She and her son happened to be among them. I have no power over whom the police question and I was devastated by this woman's attack.

Will you kindly print my letter and put the matter into proper perspective?

Nuts To The Whole Human Race

Dear Human: Drop Mrs. Fire Bomb a note and tell her you did not appreciate her phone call. Explain that the police questioned everyone who had been in your home for the past several weeks and that you were in no way responsible for their procedures.

By the time your letter arrives, she will no doubt have cooled off. If not, this column should help clear her sinuses.

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — In the first-class waiting room at the airport between flights the other day, we met Irvin Feld, president and producer of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, as he was about to go off on his usual globe-trotting expedition in search of new talent to add to the abundance which already exists in The Greatest Show on Earth.

Since Irvin Feld acquired the circus in 1967, he had made many innovations to insure that the superlative in the trademark, The Greatest Show on Earth, remains absolutely unchallenged. He created the Clown College in Venice, Pa., in 1968 to meet the need for new blood in clowning; he established a second traveling unit in 1969 and expanded both to 300 performers and 200 animals, and treated the circus to its first women clowns.

In the eight years since Irvin Feld has been at the helm of the circus, he has flown over half a million miles, ferreting out unusual new acts for the show. He has enriched the ranks of the performers with the likes of French dare-devil highwire walker Philippe Petit, who walked between the towers of the World Trade Center, and he purchased an entire German circus to secure the services of dynamic animal trainer Gunther Gebel-Williams.

We asked Irvin Feld about his most memorable trip and what new additions there were to the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus family.

Irvin Feld said his son, Kenneth, the co-producer of the circus, had recently scored a coup in getting the Samel mixed-animal act from East Germany after six months of negotiations.

"It was the start of that country's cultural detente with the Western world," Feld said.

"It's an incredible act, run by a husband and wife team with an assortment of usually incompatible and difficult animals — lions, tigers, a puma, a black panther, a polar bear and Himalayan bears. Nobody has done anything quite like it since the thirties."

Feld asked us what we thought is the most popular entertainment form in the eastern countries. We right away guessed ballet or opera.

But he straightened us out: "There are scores of dance companies in Russia, but absolutely nothing can compare in scope to the circus. If you want a statistic, Russia has about 500 touring circuses at this very moment."

Feld's favorite recollection of his global scouting missions concerns the discovery of Michu, the smallest man in the world.

"For years, during my trips to Hungary," said Feld, "I'd heard about Michu. No concrete information where he was, just that this marvel existed somewhere west of the Carpathian Mountains. Well, that's my kind of fun — a challenge, tracking down the impossible, doing things on a dare. Right then and there, I told the Hungarian officials that I wasn't in the market for any more acts until I had met Michu."

"So one night there we were, my son and I and the interpreter heading through the pitch black night. After hours we arrived in a small village and our driver took us up the unlit stairs into the back entrance of a house. I saw two glowing eyes watching me. It was a bear! I had just side-stepped a bear!"

"At the top of a flight of wooden steps, a woman was waiting at a kitchen door.

"Out of the corner of my eye, I saw something slithering straight towards me — it looked about 25 feet long — an enormous snake. Luckily the woman spoke his language, and whatever she said to him, the snake made a detour."

"Then something darted right through my legs. I thought, 'This is it, my number's up. I can't get out of this one.'"

"When I saw I was still alive, I looked down and there staring straight up at me was a miniature man who had darted through my legs. I never saw anything like it in my life. He was a handsome, perfectly formed man, not a dwarf, not a midget. Not a freak. A marvelous tiny creature. That's how I met Michu."

"The woman who let us in had adopted Michu when he was very young, and he had performed in her circus ever since. He did the village circuit, and headlined with the bear, the snake, a couple of porcupines, a lion and a tiger."

"Final arrangements were made with the Hungarian Minister of Culture, and the Smallest man in the world, but I'm not kidding, he really projects, and the audiences love him."

"The fascination of producing Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is mixing animals and people and having it come out right," Feld said.

The flight announcement came over the loudspeaker, and Irvin Feld, The Greatest Show on Earth's intrepid talent scout, had to depart to follow the trail of another Astounding Awe-Inspiring Amazing Act to delight Children of All Ages.

Warranty regulation in effect

An important federal regulation governing consumer product warranties went into effect July 4.

Patrick J. Gorman, director of NAHB's Business Management department, said all written warranties given by builders on any of the products installed or accompanying residential sales units will have to tell buyers whether the warranty is a "full" or a "limited" one.

The warranty information is required to be given by the Magnuson-Moss Warranty — Federal Trade Commission Act (Public Law 93-637), which states that this particular provision is to become effective on July 4, 1975.

Written warranties

Gorman emphasized that the Act covers all written consumer product warranties. Warranties given by the manufacturer must be similarly designated by the manufacturer as "full" or "limited." However, there is no requirement in the Act imposing responsibility on the builder to see that manufacturers properly designate their warranties.

The Act applies only to warranties given on a "consumer product," as defined by law, not to the real property or to the building itself.

A consumer product is defined as any tangible personal property used for personal, family, or household purposes, even if it is intended to be attached to and sold as part of a piece of real estate.

Items such as carpeting, central air conditioning, water heaters and kitchen appliances, and similar appliances are considered to be consumer products and are covered by the Act.

Mobile homes 'product'

The Federal Trade Commission also has taken the position that a mobile home is a consumer product and is covered by the Act.

Gorman pointed out that the act does not require that warranties be given on such products but that if the builder decides to give them the warranties must meet the regulations on fully disclosing their conditions.

Although the Act states that the designation of the warranty as "full" or "limited" is to become effective on July 4, 1975, neither it nor the few official interpretations which have been provided take up the question of items for which a sales contract has been executed before July 4. This would concern, for example, appliances included in the purchase price of a home but which are not to be delivered until after July 4th.

"To be absolutely safe," Gorman said, "if a builder gives a warranty, it should bear appropriate language to comply with the Act on any products which are delivered after July 4th, even if a contract for their purchase was executed before July 4th.

Builders who are participating in the HOW program will receive instructions from their local HOW councils on compliance, Gorman said. The precise action which nonHOW builders must take to comply with the warranties they are offering, and such builders are therefore advised to consult with their own legal counsel.

'Full' warranty defined

A warranty can be designated as being "full" only if it meets the following four tests: — It calls for the builder, in the event of a defect which is covered by his warranty, to repair, replace, or refund the purchase price of the item within a reasonable time and without additional charge to the purchaser.

— It does not limit the duration of any implied warranties on the product.

— It permits the purchaser to choose either a refund of the purchase price or the replacement of the item without charge if the builder is unable to repair the item after a reasonable number of attempts.

— Any exclusion or limitation of consequential damages for breach of warranty must appear "conspicuously" on the face of the warranty.

Must state duration

If a warranty meets the above tests and is designated as "full," the caption must also state the duration of the warranty. Thus, a sample designation might read: "Full Two-Year Warranty," Gorman said.

The duration of implied warranties may not be limited if a "full" written warranty is given. If a "limited" warranty is given, the duration of an implied warranty may be limited to the duration of the written warranty, if the limitation is "prominently displayed" on the first page of the warranty document. Complete disclaimer or exclusion of implied warranties is not permitted by the law.

Pocono Country Place wins on tried, true maxims

Why, when today's economy is such as it is, when unemployment is at its highest level, when the buying public is more conservative than ever, when just about every recreational community in the country is worried about business, one such community, "A Pocono Country Place," continues setting a record breaking sales pace in the industry?

Although the answer to these questions may appear complex, in reality, they can be summed up with one statement: "Give the majority of the buying public what it is really looking for."

However, is it that simple? Let's take a closer look at Pocono Country Place and find out what really makes it tick.

First of all PCP is owned and operated by three with a wealth of experience in every phase of community development — Bertrand P. Kadis, president; Donald J. Kessler, vice president and Frank A. Trainor, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

These men were able to draw from their collective past experiences and determine what PCP should be, not only to the buying public, but also to the environment, the area, the county and the state.

Results: PCP is the only "5-Star Community" in the beautiful, scenic Pocono Mountains.

1. Preferred location — in the heart and center of the Mt. Pocono area, between the big three ski areas, near Pocono International Raceway, and Mt. Airy Lodge.

2. Prime virgin forestland — remarkably level, thickly forested prime land surrounded on three sides by Pennsylvania State Park and Game Lands.

3. Private lake with complete recreational and social amenities — mountain top spring fed sparkling lake, tennis courts, horse corral with 28 miles of winding trails used for snowmobiling in winter, all-sports playing field, clubhouses, swimming pools, teen center, etc.

4. Central water and central sewer system — included in price of homesite, city convenience in country living, no added expense for wells or septic systems. Every homesite guaranteed buildable.

5. Private membership community — 24-hour protection with locked security gate and mobile security units. Open only to property owners, their guests, and temporary members. Never open to the public.

When the community was finally planned, engineered and approved, a top management team was chosen from among the best in the business to select and oversee the most professional sales personnel available.

Now the wheels are in motion and there emerged a most unusual and extremely unique concept in four-season recreational living where the key factors were:

— Something for just about every taste and every pocket-book without resorting to high pressure sales tactics.

— Do, and do not promise. PCP actually builds and completes first and then tells their property owners it is ready for their use.

— Prove with facts how a family with a modest income can afford to fulfill their dream of owning a second home in the country.

— See to it that the high standards set for the customer, the property owner, and the community are constantly maintained.

At PCP a customer may purchase property with as little as 10 per cent down and receive deed to the homesite (in most communities deed is not delivered until homesite is paid in full.) The customer is then entitled to build, either thru PCP builders, or outside contractors, with full financing on the entire package (land & property combined) which could come to under $20,000.

These, coupled with the fact that Pocono Country Place is better than a year ahead of schedule on completion of its facilities, are probably the in depth reasons why, in the face of adversity they continue to set new sales records each week.

Minister becomes developer

TANNERSVILLE — One of the Pocono's newest vacation communities, Glenoak Forest, has a resident owner-developer who, after 15 years in the pulpit, may now be found dozing out his lake-site, clearing his two miles of roads or raising the roof of one of his distinctive rustic homes.

He is the Rev. William J. Keller, on leave of absence, doing something his artistic nature has always wanted to do in creating a beauty spot in the great out-of-doors. Right from the beginning, this has been a family project, with his sons operating the equipment beside him and his wife, Mary, swinging a hammer or operating a saw to help raise a house.

Glenoak Forest is a 104-acre tract bought by Bill Keller from a local group of men who used it for deer hunting. When he saw this well-drained wooded mountaintop with interesting terrain and a natural glen and stream for a lake-site, Bill decided that his search for a perfect vacation community spot had ended, and his artistic mind set to work to develop it to include a large beach and picnic area, tennis court and ski slope.

Because of the family nature of the community, the Kellers are able to offer beautiful, wooded, one-acre homesites for as low as $4,900 and even less during special sales.

Glenoak Forest is open to all builders but Bill Keller himself likes to specialize in rustic chalets. Since he designs them, draws the architectural plans, and builds them with the family, his prices are as attractive as his homes.

The Kellers invite you to drive out to see the progress of their new community, and (incidentally) have a cup of coffee with them if you're not in a hurry.

Glenoak Forest is five miles east of Tannersville and only one-half mile from Birchwood Airport. From Tannersville, take Cherry Lane Road east, then Birchwood Road, turn right, and you're there.

Lot of jobs

The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation employs more persons than any other branch of state government. On Jan. 31, 1975, the department had 19,099 employees and an annual payroll of $144 million.

Lovers of the outdoors attracted to Big Bass

GOULDSBORO — "Owners of leisure homes in the Poconos are men and women who still love the outdoors as much as when they were boys and girls," says Lou Larsen, co-developer with his brother John of Big Bass Lake.

Larsen believes that fascination with the wonders of nature is keenest in children. "For them, a walk through the woods is a tour of discovery into a world of beauty and mystery. Getting up early to go fishing or watching the moon come up as big as a washtub in the early evening are great adventures. These experiences can be forgotten in later life, overshadowed by the worries of adult living, but some grownups are fortunate enough to carry the childhood love of nature through life.

"These are the people who know they mustn't hurry so fast along life's road that they never see the flowers along the way," Lou says. "They're the people who come to the woods and mountains in search of a second home where they can recreate and enlarge upon the happy moments of their youth."

Big Bass Lake and the Poconos in general provide an ideal atmosphere for reviving a kinship with the outdoor world. The Big Bass property stretches over 800 acres of woodland that includes a 100-acre lake and a beautiful trout stream. Big trees screen every homesite. Deer wander through the woods. Over 225 species of birds were identified on the property by Dr. E. Everett MacNamara, the noted ecologist who originally evaluated it for the developers.

Equally impressive are the large state parks immediately adjacent to or near the Big Bass Lake Community. These include Gouldsboro State Park with its 225-acre lake; Tobyhanna State Park of 4,200 acres with a 170-acre lake; a 600-foot sand beach and numerous hiking trails; and Brady's Lake State Game Lands which cover 21,500 acres that abound in white-tailed deer, wild turkey, grouse and other game.

"Owners of leisure homes at Big Bass Lake may enjoy all this as much as when they were children, but now they can enjoy it from a base that includes the conveniences of town and suburban living," Lou Larsen points out. Homes built on the community's large sites are designed and fully equipped for year-round use. Youngsters may not mind roughing it in the outdoors, but today's grownups, even though their love of nature is still keen, enjoy it more if it goes hand-in-hand with home comforts that they have come to regard as essential.

For people who want to put the tang of youth back into their own lives — and give their children the opportunity to grow up in touch with trees and flowers, birds and animals — summer is the ideal time of year to get the project started. A trip to the Poconos these days is a joy in itself, and those who want to adopt this part of the country as a permanent vacation spot can stop off any day of the week for a tour of Big Bass.

The Larsens emphasize that there's never any high pressure to buy at Big Bass Lake — there doesn't have to be. The facilities are all completed, including a second big clubhouse which was recently opened that houses a pro shop, lockers and showers for the convenience of property owners using the adjacent heated outdoor swimming pool or tennis courts. Its second floor is a big and brightly-windowed open lounge with a hardwood dance floor; ideal for parties, dances and meetings.

The route to Big Bass Lake at Gouldsboro, usually takes in Interstate 80, with a turnoff onto Interstate 380 West to Exit 3. The distance from there to Big Bass is less than two miles on 507.

Camp-Stead answer to overcrowded camping sites

BLAKESLEE — Campers: Did you know that for every individual campsite in our country, there are five campers waiting to get in? This problem is serious now and will get worse every year as more people turn to camping for their vacations and occasional recreation.

According to a recent article in The Wall Street Journal, there are more than 820,000 campsites in the United States and over 4,000,000 campers competing for the facilities. And based on growth patterns of the last ten years, the number of campers in the United States could easily double in the next five years.

Why has camping become so popular? Those who are into it know that camping involves much more than the tents and mess kits of years ago. Most camping these days is done in modern, comfortable, nicely furnished vehicles or mobile homes. Many times, the facilities and appointments in ones vacation home are actually as attractive as the camper would have in his or her primary home.

Camping has universal appeal. Doctors, lawyers, scientists, office workers and factory workers alike say that they have found camping to be one of the most exhilarating and enjoyable ways to spend a vacation.

It may sound corny, but campers also talk of a family closeness, family rapport and family unity that is impossible to attain while vacationing in a motel or hotel. Also, most campers find that good manners come naturally: You won't find a friendlier, more helpful group of people.

Are there any other reasons camping has become so popular lately? Definitely . . . and in a word, economics.

Most of us look forward to the day we can own a nice little vacation home at the seashore or in some secluded mountain retreat — far from the noise and pollution and tensions of everyday living. But when we look into the price of land, cost of improving the lot, and building a little house — we suddenly find that the "dream" we envisioned may cost far more than we paid for our primary home.

So if the campsites are full and most vacation homes are cost-wise "out of sight," is there another answer?

"Yes," according to Douglas D. Franke, owner of The Camp-Stead, a small four season development in Blakeslee, Pennsylvania — the heart of the Pocono Mountains. "If you can't afford a second home per se, you will probably end up spending $500, $1,000 or $1,500 for vacations each year, including everything. In fact, most of us don't really know exactly how much we spend vacationing."

Franke feels that he has a community that everyone can easily afford. You get a modern, furnished trailer with campsite plus roads, central sewerage and underground water, electric and telephone lines. Also a finished garden with stone walls and lovely spruce trees, a clubhouse and pool — all of which are there now. And all of these amenities can be had for $6,895 — with 10 years' financing available.

Franke has a long history of success in the Poconos, and his main goal is to give his campers complete satisfaction. He even invites you to speak with the folks who are presently camping or living year round as residents of The Camp-Stead.

Franke is most anxious to protect the natural beauty and wildlife of the Poconos. The Camp-Stead blends unobtrusively into the landscape, close to fishing, boating, skiing and every other type of recreational activity your family would like.

Franke made an interesting analogy: "The Camp-Stead can be compared to the McDonald hamburger. We offer an instant vacation, just like the instant hamburger service. Within one week of purchase, a family can move into its country hideout. It's also ridiculously low priced — like McDonald's."

"Kids and adults love The Camp-Stead."

THE POLORON DEALERSHIP

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR THE BUILDER WHO WANTS TO BUILD MORE HOMES AND MAKE MORE MONEY

In the near future, Poloron Homes expects to establish a Poloron dealership in your area.

The dealer we're looking for is a special guy, not because he's rich or a financial wizard but because he's a competent builder . . . one who enjoys the respect of his community and his associates . . . a man who wants to build quality homes for the people in his market area.

Your investment is your knowledge, your experience, your business know how.

You don't need a lot of cash to become a Poloron dealer. There is no "franchise fee", no licensing costs and no Poloron dealer is ever forced to buy any homes ahead of time. A home is only delivered after the customer has bought it.

The major thing we're looking for in a prospective Poloron dealer is the desire to build more homes and make the money a builder deserves for all his hard work and long hours. This is a man who knows how to sell housing and who likes selling as much as he likes building. In addition, you'll need the foresight and ambition that will turn your desires into reality and be willing to work hard to get what you want.

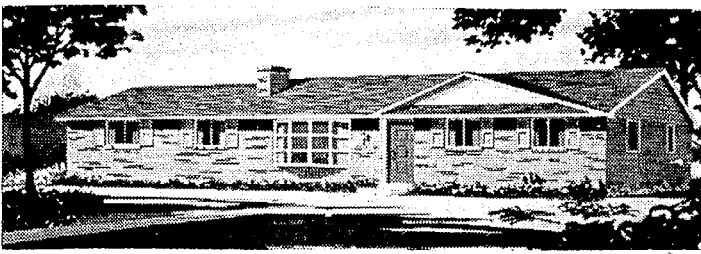

Maybe you're the man we're looking for. Want to talk it over? Write or call today.

vacation. One that isn't here today and gone tomorrow.

It's a very sound way to look at Saw Creek. Because summer pleasures here don't disappear in a week or two. Nor the money you'd spend on them.

And, do look at Saw Creek, because here your adventure into the perfect lifestyle could begin. Imagine for a moment your very own vacation, permanent, or retirement home in a setting of the Pocono Mountains' superb beauty, tranquility, fresh air and peace. And yet, your land situated within hours' drive of many of our major metropolitan areas.

Saw Creek - the kind of place you want your family to grow up in. 1500 acres of subline beauty, beautiful homes, central sewer and water systems, and every conceivable outdoor sports, recreation and indoor comfort to suit the taste of anyone who seeks happy family pleasures.

Saw Creek's Clubhouse will be a pure pleasure center for the entire family. Social evenings of cocktails, dining and dancing. Game, card and meeting rooms, billiard and table tennis. Complemented by our beautiful heated indoor pool amid the charm of English Tudor decor.

Outdoors, a large Olympic-size pool, a complete recreation area, teen center, and a fully equipped children's playground. Nearby, an 18 hole PGA Championship golf course that will delight and challenge pro and duffer alike. Then there is our indoor tennis courts, just for our racketeers. And, to horse around, our complete indoor and outdoor riding stables. For you hunters, State Game Land, adjacent to Saw Creek, where you can hunt, in season, a large variety of small game and deer. Or, just watch them walking through our woods and meadows.

Saw Creek in winter will be a lot of fun, too. With our own private Ski Slopes with chair lift, and our ski shop in the clubhouse with Housing Act aid for homeowners

President Ford, in a White House ceremony on July 2, signed into law the Emergency Housing Act of 1975.

The newly enacted measure (H.R. 5398) is a House-Senate-Administration compromise version of housing legislation bearing the same title, which Ford vetoed on June 24.

It extends and expands the Emergency Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974 (Cranston-Brooke) and provides mortgage foreclosure relief for unemployed homeowners, and contains several miscellaneous provisions.

The President told the gathering: "This Administration is committed to a prompt recovery of the housing industry and to getting construction workers back on the job. Both of these objectives and actions are crucial to our overall economic recovery."

Money must be appropriated

The legislation gives the HUD Secretary discretionary authority to purchase an additional $10 billion of conventional and FHA-VA mortgage loans, subject to congressional approval in an appropriations act.

It extends the expiration date of the Cranston-Brooke Act to July 1, 1976, fixes a mortgage interest rate ceiling of 7 1/2 per cent under the program, and expands coverage to include condominium mortgages and multifamily mortgages.

The bill also provides standby authority for the HUD Secretary to assist homeowners facing mortgage foreclosure by co-insuring loans or credits advanced by lending institutions and by making mortgage relief payments to lenders on behalf of eligible homeowners. The assistance can be as much as $250 a month for as long as 24 months.

Other provisions of the new legislation will:

— Extend the Sec. 312 program of 3 per cent rehabilitation loans to Aug. 22, 1976, and authorize an additional $100 million for the program, subject to the appropriation process.

— Give owners of certain FHA insured houses which had serious structural defects at the time of purchase seven additional months in which to request HUD assistance in making repairs. In extending this program, known as Sec. 518 (b), Congress also made aid available to owners occupying three or four unit structures.

— Extend for six months to Jan. 1, 1976, the authority of federally regulated lenders to make conventional mortgage loans on existing residential structures in flood prone areas of communities which have not agreed to adopt land use.

Colonial theme

EAST STROUDSBURG — At this time in history, our thoughts and tastes are on our heritage. We are interested in a touch of yesterday with the ease of modern conveniences.

These features are all brought together in this master bedroom, which can be seen in a home recently completed by David A. Lesoine, General Contracting.

The fireplace adds warmth and atmosphere to this colonial setting.

The red oak flooring is native to our own Monroe County. The timber was cut in Stroud Township and left to age for three years.

The logs were sawed into boards, stripped and left to dry for another two years. The flooring was then planed and installed, being stained this rich dark color.

One can really feel the charm of our forefathers and their way of life while in such a setting.

Organized crime involved?

Land sales fraud cost millions

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Dow Jones - Ottaway News

MIAMI BEACH — Less than two months ago, during a running legal battle with Florida securities regulators, Equitable Development Corp. here outlined some of its problems in a long letter. The letter was sent to the 700 or so persons who had invested about $5 million in high-yield promissory notes issued by the land-sales corporation, which is called EDC. Part of the letter said: "Management of EDC believes and understands that it has a fiduciary obligation . . . to see to it that all the just debts of EDC are paid."

Signing the letter as director of business affairs was no less an authority on fiduciary obligations than Eugene Tannenbaum. Tannenbaum is a convicted embezzler (of $65,000 from a Miami bank when he was its counsel and a director), a disbarred attorney (as a result of his embezzlement and unrelated breaches of trust), and an erstwhile associate (on the same bank board) of such well-known dealers in overvalued securities, as S. Mort Zimmerman and Allen J. Jefferdink.

Tannenbaum is one of a number of white-collar criminals who now are being linked to EDC and other land-sales companies in the continuing investigation of what state officials call one of history's larger frauds. So far, more than 30 land-sales companies are under investigation in Florida and elsewhere.

Empty promises

Moreover, investigators say they are close to documenting ties between the shadowy underworld of organized crime and certain active participants in the estimated fleeing since 1970 of at least 30,000 investors in high-yield promissory notes of the land-sales companies. Usually, investigators say, it turns out, the notes were secured by little more than empty promises — fake first mortgages or unenforceable installment-purchase agreements on grossly overvalued Florida land lots. In addition, one top investigator says well over 10,000 lot buyers in at least 20 states have been bilked out of millions of dollars more because they lack clear titles to the land.

Authorities brand the swindles as particularly cruel because most of the buyers of the notes are fixed-income retirees. Already fighting a losing battle against inflation, they often entrusted their life savings to the heavily advertised promises of 12 per cent to 15 per cent annual interest on the notes, payable in monthly increments. For many, the only hope of any recovery now is said to hinge on legislative willingness to pass special reparations measures if the state is guilty of contributory negligence or worse.

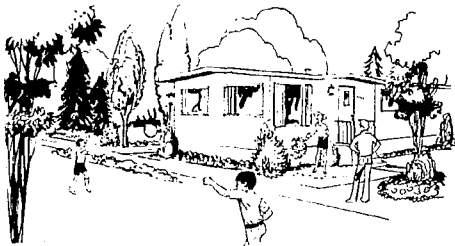

In this retirement-haven state, that's political dynamite, and politicians are responding accordingly.

'Gross negligence or a payoff'

Yesterday, for example, a select committee of the Florida house of representatives began a series of hearings to discover, as Rep. Paul Nuckolls puts it, "why the biggest fraud case in the history of this state was hushed up for two years by state agencies." The Ft. Myers legislator adds: "It's either gross negligence or someone taking a payoff. It has to be one of the two."

Certainly, many observers agree, the pyramid investment scheme began collapsing last year less because of the faltering economy. Investigators say hard times simply made it impossible for the land promoters to raise enough money selling new promissory notes to maintain the monthly interest pay-

Organized crime may be involved in land sales fraud

when Eugene Tannenbaum joined the payroll under a work-release plan after serving 11 months of a two-year prison sentence in connection with the bank embezzlement. His talents failed to keep things from getting worse.

A performance bond

By early 1975, sales of both lots and notes were at such a low ebb that EDC couldn't even turn the tide by touting a $1 million bond purportedly guaranteeing certain actions. The bond was signed Jan. 27 with International Surety & Casualty Co., which says it is based in Georgetown, Grand Cayman Island. EDC's chairman and president, Bernard H. Horowitz, signed it along with the insurance company's president, C.W. Deaton.

Deaton is known to law-enforcement agencies here and abroad. His record includes 10 arrests and three convictions for mail and securities fraud. And he now is among those under indictment on an Alabama securities-fraud charge in Mobile. A codefendant there is Randall Ellis (Randy) Blanton, who purported to be a certified public accountant in Pasadena, Texas. Mr. Blanton has testified that he falsely certified a July 1974 balance sheet for Deaton's International Surety & Casualty showing more than $700 million in both assets and net worth. Last fall, Texas enjoined Mr. Blanton from continuing to represent himself as a CPA.

According to Tannenbaum, Equitable Development was put in touch with Charles Deaton by "a condominium developer in North Florida ... no, West Florida" whose name he can't recall. But Tannenbaum says he remembers verifying Deaton's references by calling Castle Bank & Trust Ltd. in Nassau. Tannenbaum says he talked to a "Mr. Wolstencroft (who) indicated the bank acted as managing trust for this insurance company, which had sums in excess of $1 million" with the bank.

"Rubbish!" bristles A.J.T. Gooding, chairman and managing director of the Bahamian bank. "This is all wrong ... Anyone who says Mr. Wolstencroft gave such a reference isn't telling the truth." (Mr. Wolstencroft is Castle Bank's deputy managing director and now is on vacation.)

Although Deaton happens to have an office in the same Nassau building (Norfolk House) as the bank, Mr. Gooding says that "we have no connection with this man at all. It's terribly embarrassing. We get all kinds of calls" making inquiries, evidently because Deaton has been "citing us as a reference ... since Christmas, maybe earlier."

For EDC, the futile dealings with Deaton signaled the beginning of the end of business as usual. Monthly interest payments to investors ran out in February despite other financial maneuvers. State securities regulators sued in March to enjoin further note sales. In April, EDC and a state auditor (since resigned) tape-recorded alleged $25,000 bribe offers and solicitations by each other. May brought a $45 million EDC damage suit against the state comptroller charging destruction of business by harassment. That month also brought issuance of a cease-and-desist order by the state Land Sales Division halting further lot sales on EDC's part because of multiple rule violations.

Now, EDC is in receivership under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law; this procedure keeps creditors at bay while efforts are made to salvage corporate assets and devise a repayment plan. In addition, charges of civil fraud and selling unregistered securities are included in an injunctive proceeding filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission last month against the EDC chief executive, Bernard Horowitz, and his son, David J. Horowitz, who is secretary and majority stockholder. This week, they signed a consent decree without admitting the charges. Earlier, they had denied any fraud, contending that "the state and the SEC are trying to get their licks in just to get publicity."

Land sales fraud hit hardest at fixed-income retirees

Back in 1969 in his home state of New York, Bernard Horowitz, while denying any allegations, signed a consent decree agreeing that one of his enterprises wouldn't sell unregistered land there. As a result, he had to reimburse the state $52,000 in litigation costs and offer to reimburse an additional $359,000 to New York residents.

Also, at present, in an affidavit filed in a federal district court in Miami, Edward D. Benthall, a staff accountant for the SEC, alleges that among other things EDC:

— Has issued as collateral to note investors purported first mortgages on at least 1,400 lots still encumbered by a prior blanket mortgage held by an institutional investor.

— Since 1971 has sold over $9.25 million in face amount of unregistered debt securities in intrastate offerings to about 1,250 investors, including 250 residents of other states.

— Falsely represented that it was financially sound after March 31, 1974, when it had deficits of more than $1.5 million in retained earnings and $1.4 million in net worth — and even after being unable since last December to meet current obligations.

— Failed to disclose that it was making preferential payments to some past investors over others, that it was paying interest on old notes with moneys received from the sales of new notes, that it couldn't continue to operate without the sale of such securities and that the land purportedly securing investors' notes cost it less than 20 per cent of the asserted value.

The total picture

Equitable Development's plunge into bankruptcy proceedings brings to more than a half-dozen the number of Florida land and note-promotion companies currently in the hands of court-appointed receivers. Three more companies and four individuals face a total of 195 criminal counts of fraud, grand larceny, conspiracy and related charges arising from sales of promissory notes.

The criminal charges were brought by the state in Palm Beach County six weeks ago against 2609 Corp. of Miami, which issued the notes, and two mortgage brokerage firms (and their principals), which sold the notes: Hartwell & Associates of North Palm Beach Inc. and its principal, Lane Hartwell; and S.E.I. Inc. and its principals, Philip M. Swan and David R. Edstrom. The remaining defendant, Harris A. Collier, seems the least likely one of all. All the defendants have pleaded innocent.

As Capt. Collier, he now is in his 25th year as a pilot with National Airlines. His record is rated "excellent." He earns more than $42,000 a year flying Boeing 727 jets and is being upgraded to Douglas DC10s.

But he is also president of 2609 Corp. and of certain other real-estate enterprises. And he seems bewildered by it all: "I don't know what I've done wrong . . . I just tried to get the damn thing straightened up and get the people their money. If they prosecute and break me, I'm still morally obligated to help friends who have money in it. It's a bad situation for me."

Some observers wonder whether Capt. Collier took over from previous management in a genuine rescue effort only to wind up as the fall guy. But they also wonder about reports, which he now admits, that he has associated with two international swindlers, Marty Von Zamit and Wesley Moffatt. However, Capt. Collier disclaims any completed business deals or regular association with either.

Meanwhile, Robert E.

Brown, who formerly headed 2609 Corp., now is in Arizona as president of several land companies being investigated by authorities there and here — Arizona-Florida Development Corp., Arizona-Florida Equities Corp., Buckeye Mines Inc. and Corona de Tucson Inc.

Mr. Brown, who is generally credited or blamed for creating the promissory-note plans about five years ago, is also linked through other land companies he started here around that time with E. (for Earnest) John Wentland of Miami.

Mr. Wentland is a CPA licensed in Ohio but not in Florida. In 1964 he was indicted and then acquitted of federal charges of aiding and abetting the falsification of inventory figures in an SEC registration statement filed by Miami Window Co., of which he was comptroller. More recently, he was president of a large group of land- and note-sales companies, four of which were forced into receivership by the SEC last August.

At that time, according to the receiver, the consolidated asset deficiency exceeded $3.1 million for the four companies — Continental Land Management Corp., Continental Land Corp., Continental Land Development One Inc. and Continental Companies Corp.

In a report filed in court with respect to the financial conditions of the companies, the receiver also outlined a wide variety of uncollectible assets; unsupportable journal entries showing, for instance, that Mr. Wentland never paid for $361,000 of assets he "purchased"; and numerous other accounting discrepancies and questionable financing deals.

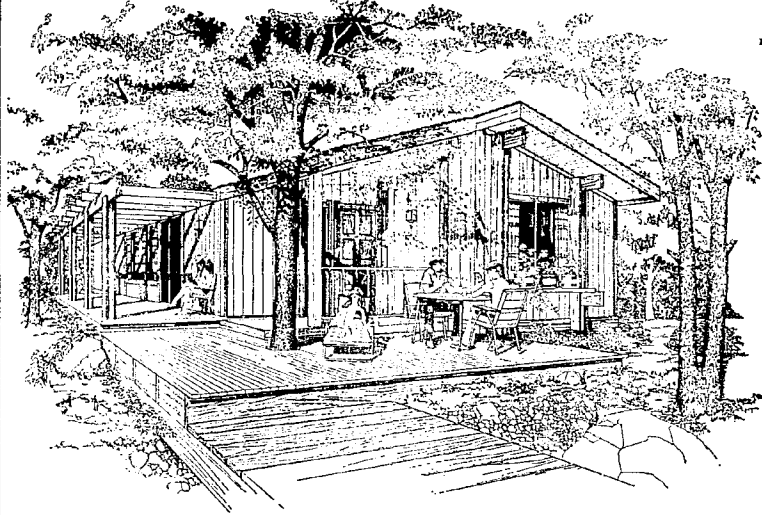

Meanwhile, investigators are continuing the herculean task of sifting through tons of public and subpoenaed documents and are finding evidence implicating a number of other companies in the massive bilking of investors. And criticism of state regulatory agencies continues.

One of these is the Land

Sales Division. Critics say the division's own records show concrete evidence that the agency knew as long as three years ago that some land companies were peddling phony first mortgages and yet never tried to stop them. There is particular criticism of the division's dealings with Miami-based Viking General Corp., the only so-called major land-sales company in Florida being investigated in connection with sales of mortgage-backed notes.

In fact, the statewide regulatory agencies were finally prodded into action primarily by the unrelenting investigative efforts of two men. One is Louis St. Laurent, the 36-year-old chief assistant state attorney in Ft. Myers, who is the grandson and namesake of the late Canadian prime minister. The other is Richard P. Dennis, 43, who became a newspaperman for the first time when he joined the Ft. Myers News-Press last year as business editor.

In heart of Poconos

Lenape Hills community open

"I QUIT MY JOB. THEY DROPPED THE BAR CAR FROM MY TRAIN!"

BRODHEADSVILLE — Lenape Hills, a new leisure community of vacation homesites, has opened in the Poconos on Route 115, three miles north of Brodheadsville.

Offering year-round facilities including a lake, swimming pool, recreation building, playgrounds, picnic areas and nature trails, Lenape Hills is designed to provide fun and relaxation for all members of the family.

According to Pat De Luca, president of Deltar Development Corporation, Kresgeville, Pa., its creators, Lenape Hills was named after the famous Indian tribe that roamed the area generations ago. He said that much of the 200-acre community will be preserved as it was when it provided unlimited food and shelter for the state's earliest inhabitants.

All homesites will consist of one or two acre parcels.

"Let's face it, people come to the Poconos to get away from the concrete jungle of the big city," he says. "Sure, I could double my profit by offering 'postage stamp' lots of one-third of an acre, but I would also be developing another big city cesspool.

"I've been asked, how can I give so many amenities for such a low price. Well, I'm a small developer who bought land when it was still reasonable. My overhead isn't large. I haven't any outside salespeople or absentee owners to feed, and my advertising budget is small. Since I live in the area, and all sales are handled by me, what I save in commissions and advertising is passed on to the purchasers of Lenape Hills.

"When I'm finished developing Lenape Hills, it will be referred to as a model Pocono community."

De Luca stressed that Lenape Hills isn't just a drawing board concept, but an actual-

ty. Utilities are in and buried underground to preserve the area's natural beauty. There is a lake and a swimming pool now under construction. Hard-surfaced roads and a recreation center will be completed soon. The center will offer a card and billiard room and facilities for exercising.

Sites may be purchased with or without homes. Residents have a choice of securing their own builders or they may use the services of Deltar Development Corporation, which are specialists in vacation homes.

Lenape Hills is located less than two hours from Philadelphia or New York, in the heart of the Pocono playground area. Ski slopes are just minutes away while shopping facilities, schools and churches are nearer still.

Shop around before paying fees

By MORTON C. PAULSON
Dow Jones-Offaway News
Buying real estate?

Don't shell out several hundred dollars for legal fees or a title search until you have done some comparison shopping.

That advice comes from Martin Lobel and Benny L. Kass, Washington, D.C., lawyers who have been active in fighting high settlement costs. The Supreme Court's nullification of fixed legal fees means that lawyers everywhere can charge what they want, and some may be cutting prices drastically.

The court decision is so recent that examples of local fee spreads for similar legal services are hard to come by.

But even before the court acted, it sometimes was possible to save money by shopping among lawyers who did not feel bound by fee schedules.

In Virginia for example, the state bar association used to have a "suggested" scale of fees that specified one per cent of the selling price for title searches for residential property. That's $500 for a $50,000 house. But in northern Virginia, home buyers could get a similar job done for $80 by retaining a lawyer from nearby Washington, who was not a member of the Virginia Association.

Searching a title simply means examining public records to find out whether there are any liens, tax bills or other encumbrances against a piece of property. The time involved will vary according to the situation and the ease of access to information; different areas have different record-keeping systems.

"On the average it should take about two hours," says Kass. There is seldom any relation between the amount of work and the price of the property.

You do not need a law degree to know how to search titles, although some localities grant access to records only to lawyers. In other places employees of title companies commonly handle this largely routine assignment.

Title fees don't have to be high

After you have signed a purchase contract, ask several lawyers and title companies in your areas what they will charge. If you want a lawyer to draw up papers and represent you at the closing, find out the fees for that service.

The federal Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974, which became effective last month, has features intended to encourage buyers to shop around for the best terms. The law requires lenders, for example, to disclose all costs to purchasers at least 12 days prior to settlement.

In practice, however, most lenders quote costs much sooner when they agree to make a loan. The new law applies to lenders with any federal connection, such as a savings-and-loan association whose deposits are insured by a government agency.

Lobel suggests asking lawyers if they will work on an hourly basis. Hourly rates vary all the way from about $20 in rural areas to well over $100 for some legal specialists. An uncomplicated title search and settlement should not take especially long. Just make sure the lawyer doesn't drag things out.

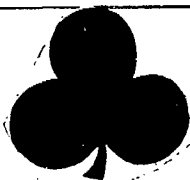

Note: The American Bankers Association has just published a 21-page booklet explaining the new federal law. Ask your banker for a copy.

Emerald Lakes has campsite

POCONO SUMMIT — One of the ways you can really get the benefits of your investment in a second home community before you are able to build your dream home is through the use of campgrounds in a community where they are available.

One community which has an excellent campground facility is Emerald Lakes. There are 30 sites on property with free electricity and water, as well as sanitary facilities, provided for the camper. This community facility was finished in 1973 and the increasing demand for campsite use for various periods has been so strong that Emerald Lakes' management had to set up a reservation system to make certain that all of the property owners enjoy these facilities equitably.

The ways in which the campsite facilities are used at Emerald Lakes range all the way from very elaborate motor homes and recreational vehicles to tents, with the majority of the property owners somewhere in between. The campgrounds are strategically located on the property so as to be conveniently accessible to all of the lakes, beaches and other amenities.
